ABUSED HIS HORSE Man Fined $20 in Police Court Today

Milkman Charged With Watering His Milk — Reckless Husband Fails to Appreciate Leniency of the Court

"If the horse had been a man he would probably have turned around and kicked your brains out," said Judge Hadley to Abraham J. Viennan, who was charged with cruelly beating a horse. Abraham said that he was guilty but denied that he treated his horse as badly as Agent Richard, of the Lowell Humane society testified.

Judge Hadley was evidently disgusted with the defendant for the manner in which he had treated his horse and after imposing a fine of $20 made the remark quoted above.

Watered His Milk

Lycourgos Lamprinos, who is a milk dealer, was in court charged with having added water to his milk in one complaint, while in the second complaint he was charged with having milk below the standard. He entered pleas of not guilty and asked for a continuance for one week and the continuance was granted.

Dodged His Car Fare

James Glynn was charged with drunkenness and "fraudulently avoiding payment of fare of 52 cents on the Boston & Maine railroad" on the 12th day of October. He denied that he was drunk and also denied the allegation that he had evaded payment of fare. He claimed that he had an excursion ticket and was "working" that when he was called to account and placed under arrest.

Inasmuch as the conductor of the train would not be back to Lowell until tomorrow the case was continued for one day.

Didn't Appreciate Leniency

M. J. Donohoe was arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with assault and battery on his wife. He entered a plea of guilty and acknowledged that he was sorry for what he did. The wife said that she was perfectly willing to suffer the injury if her husband would do better and it looked as though he would be discharged and "they would live happily ever afterward," but Donohoe started to explain and the attempt to explain proved his undoing.

Mrs. Donohoe spoke of the mental anguish and suffering which she had undergone, how hard she had worked about the house to make an inviting home for her husband and displayed her children who bore all the marks of tender care.

After telling the story of how her husband had pushed her, which resulted in the sprain of her ankle she said that she was willing to forgive him for everything that he had done if he would mend his ways.

"Don't you think you had better leave off your drink?" asked Judge Hadley.

"I never will," said Donohoe with an air of bravado.

At this point the court saw that he might have been drinking during the morning.

"Have you been drinking today?" asked the court.

"No, I have not touched a drop."

The court again spoke to the defendant relative to leaving off drink, but Donohoe still insisted that he would not quit drinking, for he claimed that he would take a drink when and where pleased and that he never indulged in the liquor to excess.

This remark caused the court to say: "If you expect any clemency from the court you have got to maintain a different attitude than you have since you stood here. I don't understand such a man as you."

Judge Hadley, evidently feeling more for the woman than the man, told Pro

LIQUID GAS Opens The Door

Will You Investigate?

THE OPPORTUNITY

There is only ONE way to make a large sum of money by a single small investment. That is to secure an interest in a company WHILE IT IS GETTING STARTED.

Protection against loss lies in the ability to discriminate—to pick the good from the bad. Others with this ability have made fortunes by purchasing stock in a company with immense dividend possibilities, an opportunity of expanding to large proportions and with a product easy to sell and used by a large number of people.

IF YOU will witness a demonstration of Liquid Gas, YOU MUST ACKNOWLEDGE, as men YOU KNOW have acknowledged, that there ISN'T a mechanic or manufacturer who can afford to be without the Welding Apparatus.

YOU MUST ACKNOWLEDGE that a portable gas, a gas in a bottle, opens up an unlimited market for lighting, heating and cooking.

YOU MUST ACKNOWLEDGE that never have you seen an article with such possibilities for the stockholder—the opportunity of making and paying increase dividends.

And if you will investigate the personnel of the men at the head of the company—if you will remember that this is a MASSACHUSETTS CORPORATION—if you will keep in mind the fact that the offices and factory of the company are right here in ESSEX COUNTY, and NOT a thousand miles away.

YOU MUST ACKNOWLEDGE that the stock at $10.00 a share, offers to you the ONE OPPORTUNITY.

Take advantage of this offer NOW! INVESTIGATE, and you will INVEST, because Eye is a company which stands up under investigation.

CENSUS DIRECTOR

Has Issued New Orders to His Subordinates

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12.—It advises tests to ascertain correctness. Census Director E. Hugh Durand Monday promulgated new rules and instructions for the purpose of securing more complete and accurate transcripts of deaths occurring in the selected death registration states and cities of the United States. These transcripts are obtained every month by the census bureau from nearly all of the city and state registrars in the census death registration area, and they form the basis of the mortality statistics prepared by the division of vital statistics under Chief Statistician Dr. Chas. L. Wilbur.

This action is expected to result in the presentation of the most scientific and trustworthy mortality statistics ever compiled in connection with a state for certificates filed many days after the close of each month or year. The population bases for the 1910 death rates, in addition to this important step toward more reliable data, the new revised version of the classification of the causes of death, as adopted at the Paris conference for the second decennial revision of the international classification, will go into effect January 1st next in the census registration area. Supplementing these will be the use of the new United States standard death certificates which it is believed the organized registration officials forming the vital statistic section of the American Public Health Association will adopt for the report of deaths beginning January 1st next, at the Birmingham, Ala., meeting, October 21-22nd next.

In his communication to the state registrars, Director Durand states that with the cordial co-operation of state and city registration officials the value of the mortality statistics of the United States will be greatly improved. It is especially requested that every effort be made to carry out faithfully the recommendations for the remaining months of the present year, so that the entire returns for the year 1910, which are especially important because of the comparison possible with the population data of the thirteenth census may be in complete agreement for all of the states and cities of the United States. Special circulars of instructions will be issued relative to the reporting of occupations and causes of death. It is hoped that the new standard certificate, and the approved instructions, may be adopted by all of the registration states and cities, so that thoroughly comparable returns may be obtained for the decade beginning January 1, 1910.

Dr. Wilbur, who was one of the American delegates at the second decennial revision, stated Monday that the opportunity of starting out with the use of the revised classification for the mortality statistics relating to the actual census year, is of the greatest value. It is highly gratifying, he said, that the wishes of the United States for the advancement of the date of the international revision from 1910 to 1909 were accepted by the French government and the other countries participating.

In accordance with a resolution of the international commission an official version of the revised tables is to be prepared in each language represented. The English translation has been made by Dr. Wilbur, aided by the other American delegates and by Dr. G. W. Kuhn, Commonwealth statistician of Australia. This will provide precise by the same tables for all the language-speaking countries that have adopted the international classification.

The active interest of the United States in the promotion of international uniformity was evident a very graceful recognition in the bestowing of the vice-presidency of the international commission upon Dr. Wilbur, who was called upon to preside over one of the sessions.

The next revision will be called in 1913 and under the auspices of the French government, unless other provision is made. Dr. Wilbur said it is hoped, however, in view of the great advancement of American vital statistics and the important part this country has played in the extension of the international classification, that the third decennial revision will be called by the American government to meet at Washington.

To the city registrars the director suggests they note the instructions to state registrars. He states that a city registrar should have in his hands the certificate of every death that occurs, with absolutely no exception, before any disposition is made of the body; hence there should be no occasion for certificates filed many days after the close of each month or year. The preparation of the mortality statistics of the present year, so that the entire returns for the year 1910, which are especially important because of the comparison possible with the population data of the thirteenth census may be in complete agreement for all of the states and cities of the United States. Special circulars of instructions will be issued relative to the reporting of occupations and causes of death. It is hoped that the new standard certificate, and the approved instructions, may be adopted by all of the registration states and cities, so that thoroughly comparable returns may be obtained for the decade beginning January 1, 1910.

Dr. Wilbur, who was one of the American delegates at the second decennial revision, stated Monday that the opportunity of starting out with the use of the revised classification for the mortality statistics relating to the actual census year, is of the greatest

DAMAGES OF $250,000

The Case of the Danbury Hatters in Court

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 12.—After which went into effect the arbitration award, an exhaustive examination by counsel was made yesterday morning for both sides, and three were chosen from each side to act as their witnesses to present the case in the consolidated labor question in the higher courts for the result of Dr. E. Lowrie et al. vs. Martin six years ago. Webster T. Jones, who Lowrie et al. are in the Danbury improvements, and James C. Conroy, who represented the hatters, case in which damages of more than $250,000 are sought for alleged injuries. At noon, Monday, the preliminary trial of the damages by one witness, the case was adjourned for the purpose of an all-day break out of the union, but defendant's attorney said that the same bary and Norwalk; that they entered into a combination to coerce all employees of Dr. E. Lowrie et al to strike, and that the strike took place in July, 1902. He claimed that the defendants had representatives travel around and threaten dealers with loss of business if they bought Lowrie hats.

The names of the 200 defendants were then read, after which Attorney Conroy began to tell the story. His examination of each juror was exhaustive, bearing particularly on their associations with labor unions, and going to the point of ascertaining if any of their relatives, and whom, were connected with trades unions. It was apparent that much time will be occupied in selecting the jury, and it is not improbable that the panel will be selected.

The case has been through the Connecticut court and the supreme court of the United States on technical points, and has now come to trial on the facts. It is estimated that six weeks will be necessary to try the case.

NOTABLE TRIBUTE

Was Paid to Samuel Compers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The organized labor representing many parts of this country, India and even China, gathered on the occasion of his birth anniversary from Europe to America to express their sympathy to the American labor organization. It probably was the most international demonstration ever assembled in North America before. There was a massive turnout followed by a procession meeting at the Washington Hotel to the number of 10,000 and women, the meeting being held in the hall of the hotel as well as in the adjacent hall. Some 2000 of the 10,000 were from Europe. The meeting was the first upon which the entire apparatus of the international organization had been expected to go into action on the continent of North America. Many delegations from other labor organizations were present.

Pavilions were erected along the street for the different countries who attended with their flags and banners. The speakers, who were invited to address the assembly, were from the various countries. With the exception of the American delegation, the speakers were from the European delegations to the meeting. The delegations were from France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Russia, Poland, Hungary, Austria, Italy, and India. The speech given by the president of the International Federation of Trade Unions was the most important of the entire program.

An attempt was made by the president of the International Federation of Trade Unions to speak in English, but he failed to do so. The president of the International Federation of Trade Unions, who spoke in English, was followed by a speaker from the National during his remarks, said: "I have no hesitation in saying that not only did Justice Wright err, but that he was prejudiced against the men of labor."

This statement was greeted by round after round of applause.

"I do not want to be a hero nor nearly a hero," he continued. "I have no desire to be dramatic or dramatic, but I say advances, with a knowledge of the full responsibility that attaches to my words, that I believe that no imposition of a light sentence will affect my rights as a citizen. I believe that the case of Mr. Morgan is the most important that attaches to my words, that I believe that no imposition of a light sentence will affect the case of Mr. Morgan. Either we have the strength and a free press in this country or we have not. The imposition of a fine of one cent or the imposition of imprisonment for one hour for the offense of speaking directly to the power of judgment, Mr. Morgan denied the right of any court to enjoin him in advance from expressing his views, although after he had spoken he realized that he might be tried for what he had said. If the court of appeals should decide against him he declared that the fight for free speech must go on until that right is achieved."

Concerning the right of the individual to speak and of a free press, "I simply content myself with the plain statement that the constitution guarantees free speech and a free press and that guarantee was placed in the constitution for a purpose."

Going directly to the power of judgment, Mr. Morgan denied the right of any court to enjoin him in advance from expressing his views, although after he had spoken he realized that he might be tried for what he had said. If the court of appeals should decide against him he declared that the fight for free speech must go on until that right is achieved.

his gun which he had left there, and a few items of supplies.

When asked why only a few supplies were taken from the cache, the boys replied that only a small amount of provisions had been used in the few days since they left the cache, and that their sledges still had all they could carry, so that they could not take more.

After being informed of the boys' narrative thus far, Commander Peary suggested a series of questions to be put to the boys in regard to this trip from the land out and back to it.

These questions and answers were as follows:

Did they cross many open leads or much open water during this time? Ans. None.

Did they make any caches out on the ice? Ans. No.

Did they kill any bear or seal while out on the ice north of Cape Thomas Hubbard? Ans. No.

Did they kill or lose any of their dogs while out on the ice? Ans. No.

With how many sledges did they start? Ans. Two.

How many dogs did they have when they set out back to land? Ans. Two.

Did they leave any provisions left on their sledges when they came back to land? Ans. Yes, the sledges still had about all they could carry, so they were able to take but a few things from the cache.

From here they went west along the northwest coast of Hellberg Land to a point indicated on the map (Sverdrup's Cape Northwest).

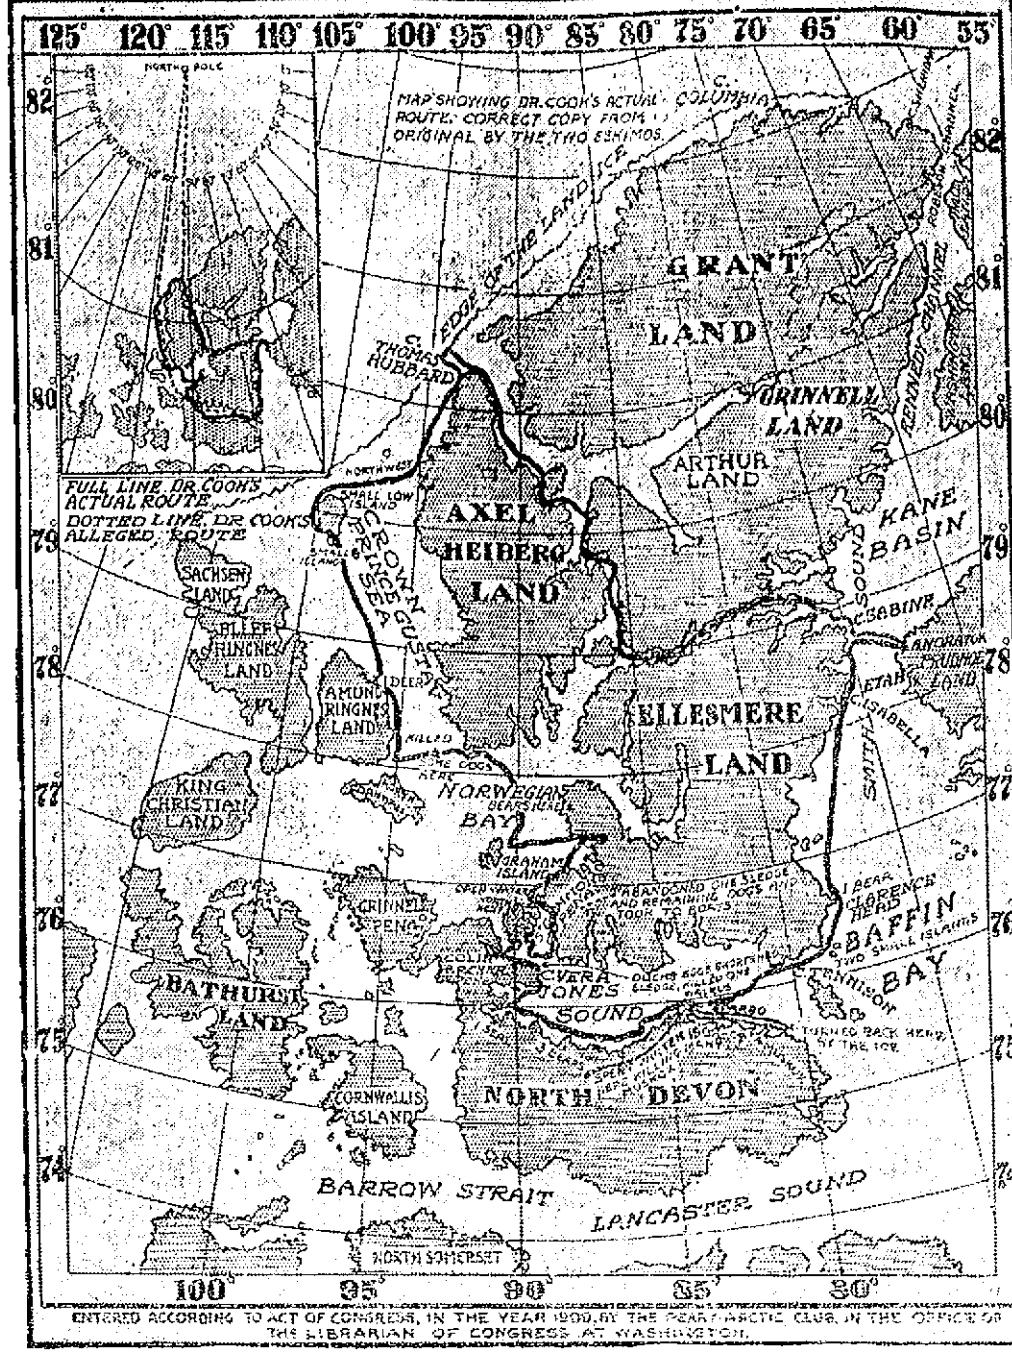

From here they went west across the ice, which was level and covered with snow, offering good going to a low island which they had seen from the shore of Hellberg Land at Cape Northwest. On this island they camped for one night.

The size and position of this island, as drawn by the first boy, was criticised by the second boy as being too large and too far to the west, the second boy calling the attention of the first to the fact that the position of the island was more nearly in line with the point where they had left Hellberg Land (Cape Northwest) and the channel between Animal Ringnes Land and Ellef Ringnes Land.

This criticism and correction was accepted by the first boy, who started to change the position of the island, but was stopped as Commander Peary had given instructions that no changes or corrections were to be made in the route as drawn by the Eskimos on the chart.

From this island they could see two lands beyond Sverdrup's Ellef Ringnes and Animal Ringnes Lands. From the island they journeyed toward the left-hand one of these two lands (Animal Ringnes Land), passing a small island which they did not see arriving at the shore of Animal Ringnes Land the Eskimos killed a deer as indicated on the chart.

The above portion of the statement of the Eskimo boys covers the period of time in which Dr. Cook claims to have gone to the pole and back, and the entire time during which

This is the map submitted by Robert E. Peary to the Peary Arctic Club with his statement by which he seeks to prove that Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who is now being acclaimed as the discoverer of the North pole, never ventured out upon the open polar sea. The map purports to have been drawn by one of the two eskimos who were with Dr. Cook, and is based upon what Commander Peary declares they told him concerning their route with Cook. The black lines in both the large land and the small one in the upper left hand corner give Cook's route according to Peary. The dotted lines in the small map show the route that Dr. Cook declares he followed to and from the pole after leaving Cape Thomas Hubbard. The irregular line in the lower right running northeast from Isachsen Land is the edge of the land ice and is according to Peary, the farthest north that Cook and his party penetrated.

He could possibly have made any attempt to go to it.

The answers of the Eskimo boys to Commander Peary's series of independent questions showed that they killed no game, made no caches, lost no dogs, and returned to the land with their sledges unbroken after their return from the pole, the trip having been made in a single day.

After the sun returned in 1900 they started pushing their sledges across the ice to Cape Temryoung, over so many signatures, and with dates not shown on the chart, probably drawn in by the boys, where they were told to go to the land ice and to follow the trail of animals.

It is suggested that perhaps Dr. Cook got mixed up in the place indicated on the chart, and was finally stopped by the icebergs at the mouth of Jameson Sound. From here they turned back to Sverdrup's Cape Sverdrup where they wintered and killed many musk-oxen.

After the sun returned in 1901 they started pushing their sledges across

Cape Temryoung, over so many signatures, and with

Rasmussen, who will be here shortly,

has seen the Eskimos and knows the real story. They did not try to deceive him. He was with them for 11 days. They knew him and told him everything. He speaks the Eskimo language, for he is a good Eskimo himself and the people have the most confidence in him. That is all I have to say now.

He then proceeded to the lecture hall in the utmost good humor and confidence to deliver his lecture.

EXPLORER COOK

AN INVESTIGATION

TO DECIDE IF COOK ASCENDED MOUNT MCKINLEY

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13.—It is the same old story," said Dr. Cook, when it was shown the statement issued by Commander Peary, together with the map accompanying it.

M. Davis replied to the points raised several times by the committee.

Dr. Cook's defense was submitted by the special committee appointed by the Explorers' club, indicating that the Eskimos had ascended their mountain to the north of Mount McKinley, and that they would not give any information to Peary or his men.

After Peary was informed by Mr. Peary or any of his party, of his proposed ascent of the peak, they were told to go to the south of the mountain.

Mr. Whitby said that during his examination conducted by the Mount McKinley peak, and the Eskimos, he found them

NIGHT EDITION

THREE BIG CONCERNS

Are Seeking Good Locations in This City

Board of Trade Has List of Available Sites and Wants More—Real Estate Owners Invited to Suggest Sites

Within a few days the representatives of three big concerns representing the woolen, yarn and silk industries will come to Lowell to look over sites with a view to locating their plants in this city. All three are well established concerns none of which is looking for stock holders or any other concessions. They simply desire good locations of about five acres each with water and railway facilities.

Since the last meeting of the board of trade the committee on new industries has been scanning the atlases of Lowell and compiling a list of available sites for such plants. They find it difficult to locate favorable sites within the city limits that have water and railway facilities, but have quite a few in the outskirts. Secretary McKenna desires that any persons owning land which they think would make desirable sites should notify the committee as soon as possible with a full description of their property and the committee will submit it to the representatives of the firms when they come here.

The committee has found some real estate owners with available sites who want an exorbitant price for them, while others are quite reasonable. The membership committee of the board of trade, George W. Hawley, chairman, will meet next weekend and formulate plans for the purpose of increasing the membership.

TROLLEY EXPRESS

May be Established in This City Next Spring

The Company Awaits Franchises in Lawrence, Andover and Chelmsford—Sec. McKenna and Supt. Lees Confer on Matter

The prospects for the establishment of a system of trolley express in Lowell next spring look bright as the result of an investigation recently made by Sec. McKenna of the board of trade at the request of the directors of that organization. At the last meeting of the directors the secretary was instructed to get into communication with the railroad people relative to the matter, the franchise for this city having been voted some time ago.

Secretary McKenna wrote to Mr. Goff who has charge of the railroad affairs during the absence of President Sullivan, who is in Europe. Mr. Goff sent Supt. Lees of the local division to Mr. McKenna today with the information that the trolley express matter is held up for the present by reason of the fact that the company was refused a franchise in Lawrence, while Andover and Chelmsford have not taken any action on the company's petition for franchises in those towns. Supt. Lees, however, stated that on the Old Colony division of the street railroad the trolley express system has been established and is a big success, eight express cars being in operation. He intimated to Secretary McKenna that Lowell will have the system next spring.

REPUBLICANS MEET

Rhode Island Men Held Convention in Providence Today

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 13.—A beautiful cool day gave promise that morning of drawing out one of the largest crowds that ever attended a republican state convention in Rhode Island. The meeting was called for 10:30 o'clock and for half an hour before that time the crowd poured into the infantry hall. The big convention hall was decorated with pictures of the candidates and with hats and hunting. There was little excitement as every one realized that all preparations had been made beforehand and that there would be no contest of any kind. The meeting was called to order by Chairman Lawton of the state central committee who then turned the gavel over to William C. Bliss of East Providence as temporary chairman. He was afterward elected as permanent chairman with Nathan N. Wright, secretary of the state central committee as permanent secretary.

At 10:15 o'clock the hall was sprinkled with delegates and politicians, all eagerly discussing the coming convention. A band in one corner of the hall discoursed national airs and this together with the elaborate decorations of the place were in marked contrast

THE WORLD SERIES GENERAL CONFERENCE

The Fifth Game by Detroit and Pittsburg

Of Primitive Methodists at Gorham Street Church

Three Districts Represented, the Pennsylvania, Eastern and Western — Many Delegates From Pennsylvania

The sixth general conference of the Primitive Methodist church in America opened in the Primitive Methodist church in this city this morning. There are about 80 delegates present from all parts of the United States and representing three conferences, the Pennsylvania, which is the largest conference, and the western and eastern conferences.

All of these conferences hold annual meetings but it is only once in every four years that a general conference such as is now in session in the pretty little church in Gorham street, takes place.

The first thing on the program today was a meeting of the standing committee and at 10:30 the organization of conference took place. The devotions were in charge of Rev. Daniel Savage, president; and Rev. Elijah R. Ayers, North Tiverton, R. I. At 1:30 p. m. devotions were conducted by Rev. H. G. Russell and the business meeting was at 2 p. m. The rest of the program for the day was as follows:

2 p. m.—Our Missions and Education. Hon. Robert Dudley, presiding.

6 p. m.—Western Conference. G. Fox, Platville, Wis.

VICE PRESIDENT

Sec. McKenna at State Board of Trade

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Board of Trade was held at the Vendome, in Boston yesterday, and the local board was represented by President Neale, Sec. John A. McKenna and Charles H. Conant. A letter of regret was read from Charles E. Adams, honorary president of the organization. President Elliot, of Harvard, delivered a paper on "Changes in Business Methods." Sec. McKenna was elected a vice president of the state board.

Sec. John A. McKenna goes to Rochester, N. Y., next week to attend the annual convention of the National Association Commercial Executives, consisting of the presidents and secretaries of all the leading commercial and trade organizations of the country. The convention will last four days and will be addressed by many of the leading workers in civic work in America.

RESIGNATION OF CRANE

Will be Accepted by President, it is Said

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—What will President Taft do with the resignation of Charles Crane as minister of the United States to China?

In substance this question was on the lips of all official Washington today. It is long since a diplomatic episode has excited the national capital more than this one. Mr. Crane's strong reply last night to the statement in which Secretary of State Knox yesterday afternoon announced that he had informed the minister that his resignation would be accepted including as interpreted here this morning as indicated by the telegram of virtual resignation.

Therefore the press despatches received last night from the newspaper correspondents traveling with President Taft to the effect that information was addressed to the president in person as their official return required, and that it would have to be acted upon in the same way by the president in person.

One of the possible indirect results of the whole incident is discussed with much interest in some diplomatic quarters and that is the uncertainty which Japan has indefinitely delayed even in the words of Mr. Knox's statement of yesterday to the effect that "the government looks with disapproval upon her gains in Manchuria through the two new treaties with China, which have been so much increased in connection with the crane affair."

According to this view Mr. Taft's telegram of virtual resignation bears all responsibility for that action.

At the same time it was borne in mind that Mr. Crane's telegram of resignation was addressed to the president in person as their official return required, and that it would have to be acted upon in the same way by the president in person.

One of the possible indirect results of the whole incident is discussed with much interest in some diplomatic quarters and that is the uncertainty that Mr. Knox was perfectly assured of the approval of the president that he was not the kind of a man to take so drastic a step without knowing in advance that he would be supported in it.

Even the friends of Mr. Crane and several very astute friends have stood behind him in this crisis while highly indignant at the treatment he had received, admitted that the developments as he left San Francisco at the peremptory summons of the secretary had regardless of the merits of the case, merely destroyed any possible usefulness in his part at Peking and that in all the circumstances he could not now with self respect do otherwise than insist upon the acceptance of his resignation.

It was pointed out on both sides of the controversy that as one man put it the state department big and broad,

6 O'CLOCK TIVERTON POLICE

Make Search for Missing Portions of Woman's Body

TIVERTON, R. I., Oct. 13.—A posse of citizens headed by Lieut. Charles Shatt of the Tiverton police began a thorough search this morning of the underbrush surrounding Fish and Bulger marsh roads in an effort to locate the missing head, two arms and one foot of the woman whose dismembered parts have been discovered in that vicinity, and who is believed to have been murdered.

Meanwhile Medical Examiner Dr. Stimson, the medical examiner, after a preliminary examination of the torso today, said that he was convinced that the legs and head had been separated from the torso while the body was yet warm. It was evident, according to the medical examiner, that the victim had never had any children, and he expressed the belief that she could not have been more than twenty years of age. Contrary to previous reports, the skin of the victim was rather dry, and Dr. Stimson expressed the opinion that the head, if found, will prove that the victim had dark brown hair.

The body was plump, although it had not attained the full development of maturity. The medical examiner said that identification without the head would be wholly impossible.

The examination showed that the victim had not been especially tidy about.

Sheriff Frank Detois of Tiverton held a telephone conversation with Attorney General Greenough this forenoon, as a result of which he was placed in charge of the case.

Lieut. Levi Smith of the local police force, accompanied by Sergeant Levi Grimes and a posse of men, today searched the woods on both sides of the Bulger marsh road from the point where the suit case containing the limbs was found as far as the Fish road, where the torso was discovered.

The search was suspended temporarily at noon for lunch, but resumed during the early afternoon. The torso found new clues during the morning, but had a lively fight with a bunch of rattlesnakes.

Notwithstanding the denials of the Providence officials, the local police continue to look in the direction of Situate, R. I., for information regarding Miss Gertrude Edwards and a man named Creamer, both of whom are reported to be missing.

Alice Edwards was rather short and had a scar on her right leg below the knee. Unfortunately, that portion of the body found here is missing. Creamer owned a big red automobile and this afternoon the police sent out a request many police officials for possible information regarding it.

Some of the officers express the fear this afternoon that the head might have been buried, but the search went on nevertheless.

JUDGE ANDERSON

Dismisses the Charges Against Newspaper Proprietors

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 13.—Judge Anderson of the United States court of this district yesterday dismissed the proceedings against Delavan Smith and Charles R. Williams, proprietors of the Indianapolis News, who were resisting removal to the District of Columbia for trial under a grand jury indictment charging them with having committed criminal libel in publishing articles alleging that there was a corrupt profit of $25,000,000 in the sale of the Panama canal to the United States.

"That man has read the history of our institutions to little purpose," said Judge Anderson in concluding his decision, "who does not view with apprehension the success of such a proceeding as this to the end that litigants could be dragged from their homes to the District of Columbia, the seat of government, for trial under the circumstances of this case." The defendants are discharged.

"I am of the opinion," said Judge Anderson, "that the fact that certain persons were called 'tramps' and 'swindlers' does not constitute just punishment. A newspaper has a certain duty to perform. As a former president of the American Bar Association said to me, 'It is the duty of a newspaper to print the news and tell the truth.' Mr. Cromwell's position here was in the public interest.

"So far as the record has been read, Mr. Cromwell stood upon his privilege, upon having certain interests put to him, stood upon his privilege as an attorney and refused to answer. That was the state of the case, as shown by the evidence, when we adjourned last June."

"At this session of court certain parts of the records showing the prosecution before the bar in two cases, Mr. Cromwell does not contain just punishment to be inflicted on the government and to the public interest. He is not in a position to do so."

"It is the duty of a newspaper to print the news and tell the truth. Mr. Cromwell's position here was in the public interest. I am satisfied with his defense."

"Now there were many peculiar circumstances about the whole. There were several instances I do not wish to be underlined, but rather in an aside, or out of order, except such action as persons as I may name."

"The revelation in Paragon, the unusual and peculiar. The people who are interested in the continuation of the canal. It was a matter of great importance. It was a matter of great importance to us, to the public, to the government, to the press, to the public interest. The examination and cross-examination of the evidence, when we adjourned last June, I do not wish to be underlined, but rather in an aside, or out of order, except such action as persons as I may name."

AGROUND ON SHOALS

It is Believed That Boston Schooner Will be Floated

VINEYARD HAVEN, Oct. 13.—While going through Vineyard sound early today before a fresh northwest breeze the five master Samuel Goucher of Boston took a sudden sheer, which sent her aground on the shoals. The schooner was bound for Boston with coal, and carries a crew of 12 men, commanded by Captain Hart. The vessel rested easily and it was believed she could be floated without much damage at high water. She lies in about 42 fathoms of water between the buoy on the point at West Chop and the buoy on the eastern end of Middle Ground shoal, a short distance from the West Chop light.

The revenue cutter Avonnet was expected to arrive later in the day to assist in floating the vessel.

The regular meeting of the Lowell Reform club was held last night, President Rely occupying the chair. Several propositions for membership were received and a number of young men who signed the pledge were admitted.

Chairman Powers announced that the speakers for the spoke talk to be held next Tuesday evening would be Ex-Representative James E. O'Donnell, Alderman John W. Wainwright and Mayor Officers William H. Thornton and John W. Walker.

A pleasing program of musical and literary numbers was prepared by the committee for the entertainment of the club members and guests on that evening.

LIQUID GAS Opens The Door

Will You Investigate?

THE OPPORTUNITY

There is only ONE way to make a large sum of money by a single small investment. That is to secure an interest in a company WHILE IT IS GETTING STARTED.

Protection against loss lies in the ability to discriminate—to pick the good from the bad. Others with this ability have made fortunes by purchasing stock in a company with immense dividend possibilities, an opportunity of expanding to large proportions and with a product easy to sell and used by a large number of people.

IF YOU will witness a demonstration of Liquid Gas, YOU MUST ACKNOWLEDGE, as men YOU KNOW have acknowledged, that there ISN'T a mechanic or manufacturer who can afford to be without the Welding Apparatus.

YOU MUST ACKNOWLEDGE that a portable gas, a gas in a bottle, opens up an unlimited market for lighting, heating and cooking.

YOU MUST ACKNOWLEDGE that never have you seen an article with such possibilities for the stockholder—the opportunity of making and paying immense dividends.

And if you will investigate the personnel of the men at the head of the company—if you will remember that this is a MASSACHUSETTS CORPORATION—if you will keep in mind the fact that the offices and factory of the company are right here in ESSEX COUNTY, and NOT a thousand miles away.

YOU MUST ACKNOWLEDGE that the stock at $10.00 a share, offers to you the ONE OPPORTUNITY.

Take advantage of this offer NOW! INVESTIGATE, and you will INVEST, because here is a company which stands up under investigation.

Special to Manufacturers and Mechanics

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Leonard McCullough of Kingsley, Canada, and Mrs. Mary Manning were married at the parochial residence of St. Michael's church, Monday evening at 5.50 o'clock. The bride wore a white silk trimm'd with Irish lace, with hats to match. Nuptial mass was celebrated by the Rev. B. Kelly, B. D., C. A. Mayneth, Groom's brother, Mr. Hartford's establishment, filled the cathedral with a full house.

The bridegroom, Miss Helen Manning, a sister of the bride, wore pink silk and carried a large bouquet of pink plumbs. The best man was Mr. John Manning, a brother of the bride. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Manning, 129 Elmwood street. The bride was very prettily decorated. Mr. and Mrs. McCullough received many beautiful presents. Among these presents at the reception were friends from Boston, Providence and Lynn. Mr. and Mrs. McCullough left for a wedding tour during the evening. Their wedding trip will include New York, Albany and Philadelphia. On their return they will live in Canada.

It was in that city that the romance started.

About six months ago Miss Manning showed up with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McCullough, who now live in Brooklyn. She seemed captivated by the local telephone system. She spoke eight hours of the day and night, and the old telephone distance conversations, originated in Lynn two years back, were kept up.

Miss Manning's father, Rev. Leonard McCullough, recently returned from a vacation in Europe, had been engaged in the construction of a new church in Kingsley, Ontario, Canada, and had been absent for several months.

Mr. McCullough, of the church, Mr. and Mrs. John Manning, and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard McCullough, all of Kingsley, Ontario, Canada, were present at the wedding.

Court TodayMilkman Charged With Watering
His Milk — Reckless Husband Fails to Appreciate Leniency of the Court

"If the horse had been a man he would probably have turned around the sober off." As the man was being carried to a cell by Court Officer Cawley, Judge Hadley said to Deputy Welch: "Make a complaint against him for drunkenness."

Judge Hadley was evidently disgusted with the defendant for the manner in which he had treated his horse and after imposing a fine of $20 made the remark quoted above.

Watered His Milk
Lycurgo Lampris, who is a milk dealer, was in court charged with having added water to his milk in one complaint, while in the second complaint he was charged with having milk below the standard. He entered a plea of not guilty and asked for a continuance for one week and the continuance was granted.

FEDERATION OF LABOR
HOLYOKE, Oct. 13.—The annual election of officers was expected to be the principal business at today's session of the Massachusetts state branch of the American Federation of Labor, which is holding its convention in this city. There were contests for nearly every office, with the exception of the position of secretary-treasurer, for which D. P. Driscoll of Boston was not opposed. The aspirants for the presidency were Thomas J. Durkin of this city, first vice-president of the state branch, and Thomas Nolan of the Boston Typographical union.

Inasmuch as the conductor of the train would not be back to Lowell until tomorrow the case was continued to the court.

Didn't Appreciate Leniency
M. J. Donohoe was arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning, charged with assault and battery on his wife. He entered a plea of guilty and acknowledged that he was sorry for what he did. The wife said that she was perfectly willing to suffer the injury if her husband would do better and it looked as though he would be discharged and "they would live happily ever afterward," but Donohoe started to explain and the attempt to explain proved his undoing.

Mrs. Donohoe spoke of the mental anguish and suffering which she had undergone, how hard she had worked about the house to make an inviting home for her husband and displayed her children who bore all the marks of tender care.

After telling the story of how her husband had pushed her which resulted in the sprain of her ankle she said that she was willing to forgive him for everything that he had done if he would mend his ways.

"Don't you think you had better leave on your drink?" asked Judge Hadley.

"I never will," said Donohoe with an air of bravado.

At this point the court saw that the actions of Donohoe indicated that he might have been drinking during the morning.

"Have you been drinking today?" asked the court.

"No, I have not touched a drop."

The court again spoke to the defendant relative to leaving off drink, but Donohoe still insisted that he would not quit drinking, for he claimed that he would take a drink when and where he pleased and that he never indulged in the liquor to excess.

This remark caused the court to say: "If you expect any leniency from the court you got to maintain a different attitude than you have shown you stood here. I don't understand such a man as you."

Judge Hadley, evidently feeling more for the woman than the man, told Probation Officer Slattery to take him in hand and see if there was any chance for a happy reunion. Mr. Slattery took Donohoe into his office, but had been there but a short time when he told the court that he wanted the man placed in a cell, inasmuch as he was intoxicated. Judge Hadley ordered the man to be taken below and kept there.

TALBOT'S CHEMICAL STORE
29 MIDDLE ST.THE TALENT JOLTED*Geraldine and Melva J. Each Gave a Surprise Party

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 13.—Stingy route the second trip and managed to last long enough to finish first. Geers pulled out a bit sooner in the cold weather and a muddy track, which provided quite the best racing of the meeting. That is, there were more real contests crowded into the 10 heats decided than were seen all last week over a fast track and under ideal weather conditions. It was too cold for comfort, however, and the regulars did not enthuse much in seeing 200 horses race themselves groggy around 2:15.

The talent received an awful lacing, as Ella Ambulator, at 100 to 25, was not able to ruin Geraldine's surprise party. Then Lady Stately fell before the New England representative. Melva J. Peoria Maid was the only favorite to win, and she gave her followers a shock by making the finish in the third heat of the Walnut hall cup race so close that most every one thought Margie had won until the judges announced the contest over.

The handsome trophy which L. V. Buckminster presents to the winner of the event, which bears the name of his beautiful farm, was counted a gift for Peoria Maid, but the heavy going and cold made it the hardest fought victory that the little mare has scored this year.

Shatt had her under a drive at the end of each mile in 2:14 1-2, 2:13 3-4, 2:15 1-2, while last week she had something left in 2:04 1-4. The third heat was very close. The Maid went to a break coming into the stretch, but lost little by the mistake.

Margie, who acted as though she had enough in the second heat, was at the midge's side when the trouble came and, going to the front, seemed to maintain a slight advantage to beyond the finish. Shatt was not certain that the race was over for he went to the stand to lodge a complaint against McDonald, claiming that Margie's swerving had caused his mare to break. He was informed that he had won, and had nothing more to say.

Ed Geers drove one of his old timeres yesterday, and by going short miles won from behind in splendid finishes. His winner was the Cutting mare, Geraldine, who was not counted as having an outside chance, even to save her entrance money against Ella Ambulator, Governor Scarles, Byron Prince, Mattie Chimes and Hoosier Prince.

The Ambulator mare has been winning regularly since she joined Tom Geers' stable at Keeneville, and last year, having been able to handle Baron Whips on the half mile tracks, the rough going yesterday was supposed to make her winning all the more sure.

There was a strong play by the sharpshooters against her, as Dick McMahen passed the word that Governor Scarles, the pacing disappointment of the year, was good. The Governor saved his entrance and Geraldine the field players' money.

Murphy went the overland route in the first heat, looking for the best footing, while Geers kept close to the rail. The difference gave the decision to Geraldine. Murphy went the short way I would have tried to."

CLEARING THE STREETS

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 13.—Hundreds of laborers today are clearing the streets of the debris resulting from the hurricane which practically destroyed half of this city Monday. It will be many days before normal business conditions may be resumed here.

Great rejoicing is felt over the reports from points near Key West, showing that the loss of life from the "big blow" has been the smallest recorded along the Florida coast. The property damage, however, is the heaviest of the history of the peninsula.

Today Mayor Fogarty issued an appeal for help from the people of the United States. At the Mallory dock a great quantity of merchandise was ruined.

The coal conveyors at the naval station broke loose from their moorings and plunged through their dock. One schooner was fired and another ran aground and may be a total loss.

DRIVER OF HORSEWAS TAUGHT A LESSON BY A WOMAN*PORTLAND, ME., Oct. 13.—Yesterday

morning a colored man was driving an old and very lame horse on Federal street. There was a heavy rain, the street was muddy, the load too heavy for the feeble old animal and it stopped. The driver beat it violently but without any effect. The horse was worn out and could not draw the load.

A number of school children tried to reason with the man, but he continued to beat the horse. Then Mrs. Henrietta Williams stepped forward and said: "lash that horse again and I'll give you blow for blow!"

The driver was taken completely by surprise, but did not strike the horse again.

"Take that horse from the cart and go home," said Mrs. Williams.

The man insisted that he must take his load, but at last yielded and left the cart by the side of the street and led the horse off. He said to Mrs. Williams,

"I really think," said Mrs. Williams, "that if he had struck the horse again he would have taken his whip from him and given him a good flogging. Any way I would have tried to."

Samuel Dumont, aged nine years, and residing at 25 Clinton street while trying to steal a ride on a South Lowell electric car this morning, lost his balance and was thrown under the car, the wheels on the left side of the car passing over one of his feet, crushing the latter badly.

It has been the custom of children in that vicinity to jump on cars and ride along for a distance and jump off, and while the motormen and conductors on the different cars have tried to discourage this practice their efforts have been unavailing.

According to the story told by spectators the Dumont boy jumped on the "blind" or the left side of the front vestibule of a car, about 8:15 o'clock this morning and failing to grasp a suitable support, lost his balance and fell under the wheels and had a foot crushed.

The ambulance was summoned and the boy was taken to the Lowell hospital where he received treatment.

Noah P. Batchelder was the motorman of the car and Eugene Malone was the conductor. Both men have been in the service of the road for many years and are considered among the most careful employees of the road.

TUBERCULOSIS, PREVENTION AND CURE.

Consumption, tuberculosis or the "white plague" is the most fatal disease known to the human race in all civilized lands. The disease is also known as "phthisis" and is caused by a germ known as the bacillus of tuberculosis which has the power of multiplying very rapidly under favorable conditions. The germs, however, are dissipated by sunshine, fresh air and daylight as well as by strong disinfectants. Sunshine is the great foe of consumptive germs and kills them in a few hours.

Perhaps it is best before laying down a few simple rules of prevention to point out the ravages of this dread disease. Tuberculosis finds most of its victims in middle life, causing practically one-third of all the deaths that occur between the ages of twenty and fifty years. The mortality due to this disease in the United States alone in the course of a year reaches a total of nearly 200,000 lives. Tuberculosis causes one-third of the deaths between the ages of fifteen and forty-five and one-half the deaths between the ages of twenty and thirty-five.

During the four years of the Civil war the loss of life was estimated to be 205,000, but in four years at the present time in this country tuberculosis quietly causes the death of over 700,000 people. Imagine what a dreadful state of feeling would prevail if the nation were in the throes of civil war and if the mortality caused thereby were as great in proportion to our population as during the war of '61 to '65.

We have no civil war but the white plague is causing just three times as many deaths as would a civil war at the rate stated. Here then we get an idea of the terrible ravages of tuberculosis and of the necessity of combatting it by every means known to science. By some this disease is considered incurable, and it is in the advanced stages; but if taken in time it can certainly be cured by systematic treatment. In the columns of this paper a short time ago was told the story of the happy lot of people that was seen boarding the Varnum avenue car when leaving the tuberculosis camp of the Lowell General hospital. They were all quite discouraged and dejected on entering, but on leaving a few months afterwards they were as gay as a party of picnickers, all browned with the sun and with not a sign of the dread disease.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance company asserts that in 1907 no less than 18.29 per cent. of the males insured and 15.82 of the females died of tuberculosis, making a percentage for both sexes of 17.3. The same company further shows that from the first of January to the 31st of December, 1907, one of its policy-holders died every thirty-two minutes of this disease.

The bacillus of tuberculosis is invisible to the naked eye. Millions of such germs may be afloat in the air, thus obtaining access to the lungs by inhalation. If the person is robust he may be able to resist and cast off the colonies of germs that enter his lungs, but if weak and debilitated the germs will colonize in his lungs, multiplying with amazing rapidity, causing lumps which break and are ejected in the sputum. Here then is one of the gravest dangers of spreading the disease from the indiscriminate spitting of people affected with the disease. In due time the sputum is transformed into dust and the germs are blown about in the air. If the patient is not careful the air in his home will be charged with these noxious germs and everybody in the house or who may enter it temporarily is in danger. The germs may be drawn into the lungs on the streets, in the home or wherever they abound in the air. This shows the danger of spitting on the streets or sidewalks where large numbers of people are passing. It proves the need of enforcing the anti-spitting law which in most cases is ignored.

The symptoms of the disease are a cough lasting a month or longer, loss of weight, slight fever each afternoon, a tired feeling, and if the disease is well advanced bleeding from the lungs. As soon as these symptoms appear prompt action is necessary to check the disease. A physician's aid should be secured and the fresh air treatment started at once. Sunshine, fresh air and plenty of nourishing food, principally fresh eggs and milk, are the chief remedies. Some medicine should be taken at the same time to build up the affected lung tissue and strengthen the system so that it can cast off the germ growth that is working the destruction of the lungs. Dirt, dampness and darkness are the three great allies of the white plague and a fourth might be set down as lack of proper nourishment. On the contrary, sunshine, pure air and cleanliness with plenty of good nourishing food and rest are the greatest enemies of the disease.

The drink habit instead of warding off tuberculosis helps it. The great object either for prevention or cure is to increase the strength of the body so that it can resist the germs or cast them off if they have already established a colony in the system.

If the home treatment with the aid of a physician fails to effect a prompt improvement then the only hope lies in going to a sanatorium where the disease is specially treated and where everything is provided that is calculated to combat the progress of the disease and to build up the strength of the body. For this purpose there must be fresh air all the time, plenty of good food, rest and freedom from worry with all the benefit that can be derived from the beneficial effect of sunshine. None of the patent medicines or themselves will cure consumption while many of them are positively injurious as they derive their stimulating effect from alcohol.

With the exercise of due skill and care to prevent tuberculosis and prompt measures to arrest its progress in the early stages, there is no reason why the great mortality resulting from its ravages should not be greatly reduced. But none of these things are possible with any large proportion of the people unless the manner of contracting the disease and the common sense treatment to check its progress be widely known. The masses must be educated in the prevention as well as the cure in order that the disease may be checked at the earliest possible moment after its presence is detected. For this purpose it is necessary that physicians report to the board of health all cases of tuberculosis in order that due precautions may be taken to guard against the spread of the disease through ignorance or carelessness.

SEEN AND HEARD

"When you go to bed at night sweep your mind clear of everything and go to sleep. Fancies, hopes, dreams—everything that let all go, and rest up for the day that is coming." This is good advice, but it's dollars to doughnuts that the one who gave it couldn't follow it. Think of throwing a late horse or Welsh rabbit to the winds when you want to go to sleep!

Better to live in skeleton and ashes than to sleep on a burning mattress.

Willie Peary is back where all things good to eat are available, he still clings to canned goods. He's afraid of the cook.

A cook in the kitchen is worth four at the pole—if you're hungry.

There must be days when we can't eat, and they're the saddest days of all.

It is reported that the fellow who died last Sunday of the land-lord's curse, Mr. Jake Macneal, attended "Doughy" Murphy's corn-beef and cabbage dinner.

Quite recently a worshiper of the Aladdin legend found it necessary to call for a few hours at a military post on the coast of Ireland. Tommy Aladdin, meeting a full-burdened Irish tar on the street, enquired of hours later, said, "What's this?" and, pointing to the sailor, "When you place your tongue on the civil first" was the Irish sailor's reply.

This story was told by a man who was an advocate of the use of tobacco and who never used it himself. It is, perhaps, not as bad as it would be if the story teller was himself a slave to the weed. He believed, however, that he was acquainted with the most inveterate smokers of any day, and he gave this title to a colored woman. One day, an author of a number of anti-tobacco tracts, went to make a friendly call on the colored woman. She was then about 90 years old, but her color had turned her seated in a chimney corner quietly smoking her ancient and indolent pipe. The author protested:

"Auntie," he said, "I truly admire you, but there is one thing that I despise."

The old woman desired to know what that was.

"It's your smoking," was the reply.

The old woman laughed.

"You may smile," the guest said, "but your conduct will keep you forever out of heaven."

The aged "auntie" at once became interested.

"Lawsakes, honey, how's dat?" she asked.

"Because, auntie," the man replied, "you know that we are told 'nothing entered that lefteth' Now, how would it be possible for you to get into heaven with a breath that was defiled by tobacco?"

The old colored woman smiled and then replied, slowly: "Lawsakes, honey, when Ah goes to heaven Ah sheets to Ah's man breath bhein' ma."

Strange as it may appear, I got up early this morning—between 4:30 and 5 o'clock—and after dressing thought I might take a little walk before breakfast. Taking my sunrise while walking down the street near the house, to see Andrew Pondergast with his friends, Walter Colburn and Sam T. Foy, trading down the street, carrying a basket in his hand.

"Where are you going so early this morning?" was asked.

"Just taking a little walk," was the answer.

"What are you carrying the baskets for?"

"Well, we're not going to pick flowers."

"That's suppose you were at this time of the year."

The truth of the matter is that the trio was out looking for mushrooms, having heard of a place in that vicinity where the mushrooms are plenty. They must have expected a great haul when they carried three baskets. We are credibly informed that all they found weighed about a pound and a half. Although out early they were late.

LOVE'S STORY

Love is not told in an hour At the close of a summer's day; Time hath no bonds nor power, Love taketh his way. Feedeth of sunlight or shower, Passion or play.

Love is not told in a day, Brief though the words may be;

Lips that have clung fall away,

Night cometh to thee,

Ere that thou strivest to say

Come, love, to me.

Love is not told in the years—

Words that are sought

With a measure of fears

Unworthy brought;

When thou art kissed, love, to tears

All words are naught.

Love in a life is not told,

Yet then dost give it to me;

Nothing the lips withhold,

Yet I must tell it to thee,

Tell it, tell God doth unfold

Eternity.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

"Wanted by the Police" which is the current attraction at the opera House is proving one of the best liked of the popular priced entertainments at the Opera House this season and last night's show was seen by a good sized audience that warmly applauded the many thrilling melodramatic situations of this play. Harold Vosburgh in the role of "Billy West," the fastest telegraph operator in the world was seen to excellent advantage while the other members of the company gave adequate support. The scene inversion of "Wanted by the Police" is excellent and more pretentious than usually seen with popular period attractions. The final performance of this play here will be given tonight.

THE CHORUS LADY

Following a number of long runs in the principal cities, after an entire year in New York City and the months in London, Miss Rose Stahl will be seen at the Opera House, Thursday, Oct. 14, in James Forbes' delightful comedy, "The Chorus Lady." Miss Stahl's appearance in this play was one of the most remarkable features of New York theatricals three seasons ago, when, practically unknown, with a play from the pen of the convincing power of this remarkable drama, "The Third Degree."

HATHAWAY THEATRE

"An Idyl of Erin," a sketch which is all daintiness and sparkling comedy, and in which Lester Longman, Amy Ricard and company appear, is the headline feature at Hathaway's theatre this week. The act merits the highest commendation. The theme is treated artistically and the story of the betrothal of "Nora Nolar" of Connell to Capt. Douglass Morris" of the Welsh Horse is prettiness itself. The acting of the four characters is superb.

Other good things on the bill are: Lucy Twins in Graeco-Roman wrestling, a remarkably clean cut act; the Potts Brothers—also twins—in the hilarious sketch "Double Troubles"; Eddie & Polk, springboard acrobats; Marie, George & Hamilton, polite vaudeville entertainers; Billy Coleman, phonologist; Gillian & Murray, in a juggling act; and the Bathascope.

Performances will be given every afternoon and evening during the remainder of the week, with special seats at the matines for women.

STAR THEATRE

"Much for little." This term is readily applied in reference to the show at the Star theatre. Alice Tessier, Louis Leveque, the celebrated blind singer, and Baby Cuney, who renders popular songs in a style truly her own, are permanently engaged at the theatre. There is always a big program of motion pictures,

PEARY'S CHARGES

Says That Cook Never Went Near the Pole

Eskimo Boys Traced Course on Map for Commander—"Same Old Story" is Explorer Cook's Comment

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The following statement of Commander Robert E. Peary, which he submitted, together with the accompanying map, in support of his contention that Dr. Cook did not reach the North Pole, is now made public for the first time. The statement and map have been copyrighted by the Peary Arctic club.

INTRODUCTION BY PEARY.

Some of my reasons for saying that Dr. Cook did not go to the North pole will be understood by those who read the following statements of two Eskimo boys who went with him, and who told me and others of my party where he did go. Several Eskimos who started with Dr. Cook from Etah in February, 1908, were at Etah when I arrived there in August, 1908. They told me that Dr. Cook had with him, after they left, two Eskimo boys of young men, two sledges and some twenty dogs. The boys were I-took-a-shoo and Ah-pe-jah. I had known them from their childhood. One was about eighteen and the other about nineteen years of age.

On my return from Cape Sheridan and at the very first settlement I touched (Norko, near Cape Charbo) in August, 1908, and nine days before reaching Etah, the Eskimos told me, in a general way, where Dr. Cook had been; that he had started in Jones Sound and that he had told the white men that he had gone north. They had told me that the two boys were I-took-a-shoo and Ah-pe-jah.

Still later Commander Peary asked the Eskimo boys two or three casual questions on minor points that had occurred to him.

Certain questions on independent lines from the direct narrative of the Eskimo boys were suggested by Commander Peary to some of us, and were not personally familiar.

The bulk of the boy's testimony was not taken by Commander Peary, nor in his presence, a fact that obviates any possible claim that they were aware of him.

VIEWS OF KEY WEST, WHERE HURRICANE CAUSED BIG LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 13.—Key West and the islands along the west coast of Florida were cut off from the outer world for many hours following the great hurricane that swept in from the West Indies, destroying many lives and millions of dollars' worth of shipping and other property. Practically every house in Key West proper suffered damage, according to the first reports, and the greatest loss of life was on the keys along the coast. The damage in Key West and its immediate vicinity was estimated at $3,000,000. The hurricane visited Havana with great fury, driving vessels ashore and destroying a large amount of property in the city. The Florida grants along the water front were at once declared in Key West, and all east Coast railway also came in for rector to prevent looting. The storm was considerable loss. Martial law was at last a trial of ruin as it crossed the

John Hussey of Lynn By the Middlesex No. in Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 12.—John Hussey, 25 years old, walked into the police station here last night and asked to be placed under arrest asserting that he had been dodging the police two and a half years and was tired of it.

According to his story, he was arrested in Lynn, Mass., in February, 1907, on a charge of robbing a drug store and while being held at Newburyport, Mass., for trial the following May sawed through his cell bars and with his cell mate escaped. John Hussey, the young man's father, is said to be a contractor in Haverhill, Mass. Young Hussey declared he is innocent of the crime with which he is charged. The police of Lynn have telegraphed they will send for him.

A BAD LIVER.

A celebrated English authority once said, "The liver is the doctor of nine-tenths of the ills that flesh is heir to." It is the largest gland in the body. The blood must pass through the liver many times in an hour. When your liver is out of order you will have pains or uneasiness in the right side, or a dull aching under the shoulder blade. The complexion becomes sallow, your appetite is ruined, your bowels are inactive, while headaches, dizziness and bad feelings are your daily experience.

In all such cases almost instant relief is afforded by the use of Smith's Pineapple and Buttercup Pills, which are a marvelous success in curing all forms of liver complaint, including biliousness and jaundice. They restore an inactive and torpid liver to healthy action, regulate the bowels and cleanse the blood. A week's use of Smith's Pineapple and Buttercup Pills by a bilious or congested person will make his really worth living. They are invaluable for all stomach, liver and bowel troubles. Physicians are not to be compared. They form no salve. You should always keep them on hand. These little Vigorites will ward off every ill.

Why Jack Johnson Should Defeat Stanley Ketchel

By TOMMY CLARK.

THIS eyes of the followers of pugilism are now focused on the coming bout for the world's heavyweight championship between Jack Johnson, the title holder, and Stanley Ketchel, who is now reigning under the sobriquet of the "Michigan Hurricane," to be held in San Francisco Oct. 12. With both men in the best physical shape possible the bout should result in a contest worth going miles to see. In many sections Ketchel is placed as the man to restore the title to the white race, thereby reviving Jim Jeffries of the trouble of coming back into the ring to fight the colored man. Then, again, in other quarters the opinion is that Ketchel is too small for Johnson and the latter will experience little difficulty in stowing away the Michigan boy. Anyway, the question will be definitely answered when the pair clash.

Before his fight with Papke there were many who gave Ketchel a mighty good chance of beating Johnson. They figured him a good ring general and a man with so remarkable a punch that Johnson would not be able to stand against him. Those same fight fans, however, when they looked at Papke and Ketchel, shook their heads when it was suggested to them that Ketchel would stand a good chance against the negro.

Even admitting that he injured his hands, he would as likely hurt those same hands against Johnson. Stanley didn't have the punch to stow away Battling Nelson recently, let alone Billy Papke or Johnson. The exercise of moving around the ring in the first three rounds before Papke had marked him, tired the Michigan boy, so that it must either be admitted that he was woefully out of condition or gone back in the boxing game.

When one sizes up the dope on the Ketchel-Papke and the Johnson-Kaufman battles, the two last contests the men engaged in, one finds that the negro will on turn have an easy time of it. Although in his bout with Papke Ketchel was a ten to six favorite, it was figured by boosters that the "Michigan Hurricane" would dispose of the "Illinois Thunderbolt" in jigt time. But the result was just the opposite, and perhaps if the latter had been a little more aggressive the decision would have been given to him. Ketchel gave as an excuse for his poor showing that he injured his hand in the early part of the contest. While such was the case, the Michigan boy had ample time to dispose of Papke, as he did not injure his mauler until the seventh round.

On the other hand, Johnson's showing in his iron round battle with Kaufman was a revelation to the fight fans. The big colored man just toyed with the California Hercules throughout the contest. Had he fought with the tigerish frenzy that used to mark the efforts of such black demons as Joe Walcott perhaps he would have put his man out in about two or three rounds.

To go back further and look over Johnson's six round battle with "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien and the latter's two contests with Ketchel one would think that the Michigan boy would have a splendid chance of knocking out the negro. No stock should be taken in Johnson's fight with O'Brien, for the negro only fought with the Quaker City man. Had he tried hard O'Brien would not have lasted boy low, and in the second go he also more than three rounds. Ketchel's administered the sleep producer in battles with "Philadelphia Jack" sur-three.

To the writer the fight looks an absolute gift for Johnson. He is too big a man for Ketchel, has too many pounds

and the advantages of his opponent and too

considered possible winners. Bob Fitzsimmons did this, it is true, but that one exception proved the rule. In the days of John L. Sullivan, Jim Corbett and even to the later part of James J. Jeffries there was no talk of matching middleweights against heavyweights. While Fitzsimmons was a middleweight by weight, he was so remarkable a man in many ways and had proved his worth so thoroughly that there was no questioning his right.

In the lighter classes, such as Joe Walcott among the whites and Joe Gans among the blacks, there are instances of men going out of their classes and sustaining their reputations. It is more difficult, however, among the heavier fighters.

Ketchel has accomplished little of the Fitzsimmons sort. He looks to be a genuine middleweight and gives no signs of putting on weight much above the 170 pound mark. He is middleweight champion beyond a doubt, but Papke cast a shadow on the title in their last go, and so much because of his superior work as because Ketchel failed miserably.

To come down to the facts, Ketchel's chances of victory against the colored man are very slim. Johnson may not be good enough to defeat Jim Jeffries when the two meet, but he was good enough to play with Kaufman and the showing was such as to make him a match almost with Ketchel.

In the first place, Ketchel is far too small and far too open a fighter to ever hope to make a stand against the towering black. Unless he develops a new style he will never get within striking distance of Johnson and in the event that he starts one of his wild shirts and misses his doom is sealed from that day forward.

White Ketchel's chances appear very slim, however, one has to admit that the Michigan boy will probably make better showing against the colored man than did Kaufman. Ketchel is a far more aggressive fighter than the big, lumbering California, and he is more willing to take chances.

Ketchel's one great chance to land defeat on Johnson would be to land a few hard swings on the negro's body. This is the sort of punch to make the colored man slow down and the one to turn the trick, but Johnson handles himself so well and boxes so cleverly that it would be a difficult task to hit him down below. If Ketchel can penetrate the negro's wonderful defense in the first few rounds and land a few telling smashes he will weaken the negro and be able to land a sleep producer. In his fight with Kaufman Johnson showed that his body is his most vulnerable point and will probably be Ketchel's main object of attack.

There are any number of die-hard followers who believe that Johnson has a streak of yellow and that if properly pummeled about the body he will quit. That is one reason why Ketchel will have some followers when he stands up against the black. The other reason that the match will attract attention is because of the very audacity of the Michigan fighter, who fears no one and quite evidently thinks he will be the winner.

To the writer the fight looks an absolute gift for Johnson. He is too big a man for Ketchel, has too many pounds

and the advantages of his opponent and too

KEACHIE MOLL, WISCONSIN'S SENSATIONAL KICKER AND QUARTERBACK.

Great things are expected of Keachie Moll, Wisconsin's sensational quarterback and drop kicker, this season. Last year pneumonia had Moll in poor shape the first part of the campaign, but under the care of a specialist he has played up to undyingly and during practice has been making some long kicks, much strength to hold him off. He is far more clever than the middleweight champion, whose rushing style of fighting ought to suit Johnson to a dot. It is quite true that Johnson fights in sports, but Ketchel can be educated upon to make Jack Hall all the time. It may not be a contest that will last for any length of time, but it will surely have plenty of action while it goes on.

On Ketchel it can be truthfully said that he knows no fear. He is game to the core, for this gameness is what puffed him through against Billy Papke when last they met.

Ketchel has risked his chance, and now he is to have it.

Baseball Gambling Again.

That gambling specter which has for so long haunted the imaginations of the baseball magnates has at last succeeded in getting a due at bat.

The first up, Mr. Specter rapped the nervous magnates for a safe one, and from its start it appears that he may have a promising future in the big leagues.

This plague on all good sports has put the Boston National league club on the defensive, and the hot result of his recent imbroglio is to see that the chief of police of Boston has declined to endorse the application of the National league club for a renewal of its license to play games on the Boston grounds.

Race-manning is permitted on the courses. To support his statement that the aforementioned specter is on the job the chief states that not only have his men seen it, but have even arrested some of its followers.

The attitude of the chief leaves the Boston National league club very much in the air, and it does not yet know what it is going to do about playing off its home games.

There seems to be considerable mystery about the matter. Now, if the facts had occurred at the Boston

American League park one could understand. But "why should anybody want to bet on the National League clubs?"

Imposing any one risking a heavy fine by rushing to get a not down on the Boston Boxes?

Ugh! I forgot that now I'm again. The Boston chief seems to lose sight of the fact that this gambling is in spite of baseball club owners, not because of them. When you men bet at baseball in the winter never think of it. It's a mighty hard bargained with that would stop the sport of baseball because he couldn't arrest the ten.

Where the Trouse Lies.

The number of baseball gambling is not up in the pin-up-spectator-spectators of grand stand occupants or spectators. There are too slight to be considered. The real trouble is to come from outside the parks, if anywhere. The individuals of many cities carry a considerable daily bank roll devoted to baseball. Some day this may become so ponderous as to swing a hateful influence over some not too moral umpire or over a wretched of a pitcher. That attempt to bring the umpire at New York last year is proof enough that this is no mere bazaar. With never some patient or unkind becomes too well acquainted with the man handling thousands it is not impossible that something could be, after the manner of Jack O'Brien's fights, arranged.

Baseball has so many safeguards thrown about it that the chance of any such condition prevailing is slight. There have been times in the history of the game when such things were done, but not for a long time now.

In the meantime poor Boston doesn't know whether it will have a home or not when it gets back from the present tour.

Poor Outlook for Racing in California.

A prominent western bookmaker and track owner recently announced that there would be racing at Los Angeles and San Francisco the coming winter. For one who is an expert at games of chance—so called because the public has little—this bookmaker is acutely credulous, or perhaps it's only the old case of the wish fathering the thought.

This bookmaker's viewpoint originates in the belief, he says, that if racing at the West is a success in New York it will be in California. But it may be well to remember that oral betting is a sort of vice close to the lid, and in California they have locked the portal in question and thrown away the key.

Racing is a game for the rich, and the advent of men who make a living at it takes from it the right to be considered a true sport. When the poor owner who depended on his three or four "shares" for his hay, hoppers feed and his own bread and butter came into existence the beginning of the end of racing started. It is self evident that poor owners and cheap horses could not compete alongside against rich men who maintained splendid stables for love of horses and of the game. Right there the serpent entered the racing Eden. Since that time it has been a game of matching wits and "arranging" conditions so that bets could be won if purses could not.

polo Bill fell down, and Hughes bounced him in a hurry. Last year Germany Schreiter was the field captain of the Tigers and the most valuable man on the team, barring Cobb and Crawford. This year he got a poor start, and Jennings fired him before you could say Jack Johnson. Claude Rosman helped win two championships for Jennings. He slumped with the stick this year, and Jennings dumped him overboard in a jiffy.

"John McGraw is another good fellow, but I notice that he can slip a ten day notice to a fading star quicker than any man in the game. John makes no distinction between friend and foe. Dan McGann, George Browne, Frank Dowerman, Sunday Morris and Sammy Strong helped win a world's championship for McGraw in 1905. Two years later McGraw got rid of the whole bunch.

"There's nothing in this gratitude game on the ball field. Every boy must stand up and fight for himself. The manager that stands by his friends, especially the ones who are slowing up, will find himself out of a job."

WHEN SHAW WAS A CRITIC.

Clyde Fitch took down one of his famous raps this shortly before his death.

"Nature came to him," he said, "that great rival of mine, George Bernard Shaw, wrote theatrical criticisms for the London Saturday Review.

"Now those were criticisms indeed. Nobody could put on a good play so scintillatingly as this critic. Nobody could mind a bad play so tellingly.

"As the playwright results, I am in a sort what foolish position occupying a place at the Opera tonight, while I was told this day work for some reason I was not supplied with a program, so that I never learned the name of the play. At the end of the second act the play had subsided about as far as an ordinary dramatist would have brought it two minutes after the first rising of the curtain, except as far as I then could have imagined it ten years later, that is, when Tchaikovsky's 'Swan Lake' was still out into the sun, and for this we took my position to receive the play as my best, and most important, and most beloved memory of the theater. And when the curtain dropped, after the final bows, I found myself with a very bad headache, and I could not understand why the critics had been so bad."

"What's the name of Shaw's play?"

"It's called 'The Devil's Disciple.'

"Well, it's a play of mine,"

"I don't know," he said, "but I know he's a swell guy."

"He's a swell guy," I said.

"He's a swell guy," he said.

"He's a swell guy," I said.

"He's a swell guy," he said.

Some Features of New Musical Season

The Damrosch, Blauvelt and Other Tours

AL indications point to an American musical season of unusual interest. The announcements of the plans of well known vocalists as well as instrumentalists and of their managers are now coming forth. They emphatically demonstrate that the season now opening will attain the highest of standards.

Walter Damrosch, the director of the New York Symphony orchestra, will celebrate his twenty-fifth anniversary as conductor of that organization by making a commemorative tour of the principal cities of the east and middle west. This tour will take place in January, and the entire orchestra of a hundred men will travel in its own special train, composed of sleeping, dining, observation and baggage cars.

Reception committees are now being formed in each of the cities which Mr. Damrosch will visit. Banquets and receptions are to be tendered him at each point. As this is the first time the entire orchestra has ever left New York for a tour of this magnitude great interest has been aroused all over the country, and the coming of the organization is awaited with great interest.

In the spring of the year Mr. Damrosch will make his annual festival tour, and this season he will visit the Pacific coast. This tour will last for almost three months, starting in April and returning in June, and every big festival in this country will endeavor to have Mr. Damrosch and his orchestra as its principal attraction.

Mme. Blauvelt's Tour.

After spending a number of years abroad, singing in opera in Italy, Germany and Russia, the celebrated American prima donna, has decided to spend the coming season in her native country. This news will be of great interest to music-lovers throughout America, for Mme. Blauvelt has not sung in concert here for some time.

It will be remembered that previous to her departure for Europe Mme. Blauvelt entered the high class comic opera field, the same time as Mme. Schumann-Heink made her venture in that direction. Mme. Blauvelt's success was so great that she determined to follow the more serious study of her art in grand opera in Europe and was equally fortunate in making a great success therein. No singer in recent years has had the sensational success that has followed to the list of this artist who is not only the possessor of a wonderful voice, but of a musical tact that is equal to that of any of the great artists which usually takes the title of the prima donna. As his favorite pastime, Mme. Blauvelt has made a great name in operetta, and has indeed, I might add, a great name in comic opera, too.

She had already signed a contract for the coming season with the Imperial Opera at St. Petersburg, Russia, where she was to open her season in January. But the announcement that she would sing in concert here until December created such a demand for her services that she decided to cancel her Russian contract and remain in America, singing it with only a few changes in her repertoire.

ALICE LAKIN, CONTRALTO.

FR. MATHEW'S DAY

Observed by Members of Mathew Temperance Institute

With Entertainment and Address by Rev. Denis F. Murphy at Mathews Hall Last Evening

The members of the Mathew Temperance Institute and their guests last evening observed the High Sunday of the Month of Oct. The Rev. Denis Mathew, the good Capuchin, read the scripture. The affair took the form of an entertainment and an address on the life of Fr. Mathew. Rev. Denis F. Murphy of St. M. Church, Worcester, and was a 50 m. Mathew, being a native of Boston street.

The opening number was a selection by Arthur Martell, and he was followed by a short talk by President James J. Gallagher. There were remarks by Rev. W. George, the spiritual director, Rev. W. George, Ste. Edward F. Slattery, president and following this was a song by Miss Eliza Knowlton.

Wm. P. Thornton recited with effect a brief oration, followed by a speech on the Crown and Cross of Jesus. He spoke distinctly.

Rev. Fr. Murphy was then chosen.

A moving picture was next displayed the subject being "The Temptation and Reformation." A song by Mr. Peter A. Clark. The closing number was a moving picture. It was nearly midnight when the pleasant afternoon was at an end.

Fr. Murphy's address was as follows:

In Boston town in the year 1836

there was great enthusiasm.

An excited, surging gathering without control by the police, gleaming bayonets and moving cavalry. It was a scene of tumultuous noise; but it was to see and to uphold its hero leading up to it through the gates of history. I associate one with it. At least I wish to say and study him who has saved and made his own the affection of his people. He is within a hand's breadth of medium height, of calm and simple mien; he wears his vicarious work of iron will in a velvet coat of indomitable purpose, clothed in countenance of voice low and sweet; his beauty rather of soul than of feature; a man who draws one to him by the mighty power of simple impressiveness. Indeeds of sin and banishment, charity rather than by the force of grim will of militant might. Such is the Rev. Theobald Mathew, the champion of the apostle of temperance, the inspiration of your society.

CENSUS DIRECTOR

Has Issued New Orders to His Subordinates

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 13.—U. S. Census Director E. Dean Durand, permanent transcribers are preferred because of the skill required. Local registrars should be encouraged to make returns on time. No objective registration can exist when the capital of the state services must suffer the director states from headless and incompetent work, and the compensation for the returns is sufficient to entitle the government to thoroughly reliable transcripts, promptly transmitted, and containing all of the statistical data required to be registered under the state law.

This action is expected to result in the presentation of the most scientific and trustworthy mortality statistics ever compiled in connection with a decennial U. S. census, which affords the population bases for the 1910 death rates. In addition to this important step toward more reliable data, the new revised version of the classification of the causes of death, as adopted at the Paris conference for the second decennial revision of the international classification, will go into effect January 1st next in the census registration area. Supplementing this will be the use of the new United States standard death certificates which it is believed the organized registration officials forming the vital statistic section of the American Public Health Association will adopt for the report of deaths commencing January 1st next at the Richmond, Va., meeting, October 19th-22nd next.

In his communication to the state registrars, Director Durand states that in their work of cooperation it is of the greatest importance that there should be exact agreement between the number of deaths as compiled by the state offices and by the census bureau, at least with respect to the total number of deaths reported for each month in each state, county and city. Differences occur at present which are not creditable to American statistics. For the purpose of preventing such differences, a monthly shipment check list, showing the deaths by months and areas, has been prepared and will be supplied to each state registrar.

He asks transcribers to follow absolutely the instructions for copying and the actual census year, is of the greatest value. It is highly gratifying, he said, that the wishes of the United States for the advancement of the date of the international revision from 1910 to 1915 were acceded to by the French government and the other countries participating.

In accordance with a resolution of the international commission an official version of the revised tables is to be prepared in each language represented. The English translation has been made by Dr. Wilson, aided by other American delegates and by Hon. G. W. Knibbs, Commonwealth statistician of Australia. This will provide precisely the same tabular list for all English-speaking countries that have adopted the international classification.

The active interest of the United States in the promotion of international uniformity was accorded a very graceful recognition in the bestowing of the vice-presidency of the international commission upon Dr. Wilson, who was called upon to preside over one of the sessions.

The next revision will be called in 1915 and under the auspices of the French government, unless other provisions are made. Dr. Wilson said it is hoped, however, in view of the great advancement of American vital statistics and the important part this country has played in the extension of the international classification, that the third decennial revision will be called by the American government to meet at Washington.

To the city registrars the director suggests they note the instructions to state registrars. He states that a city registrar should have in his hands the certificate of every death that occurs, with absolutely no exception, before any disposition is made of the body; hence there should be no occasion for certificates filed many days after the close of each month or year.

The corrections should be obtained before the burial or removal permit is issued. No imperfect certificates or unsatisfactory statements of cause of death should be accepted. When overlooked, however, they may be corrected readily by special blank or telephone, and city returns should therefore be superior in quality and completeness.

In conclusion the director states that with the cordial co-operation of state and city registration officials the value of the mortality statistics of the United States will be greatly improved.

It is especially requested that every effort be made to carry out faithfully the recommendations for the remaining months of the present year, so that the entire returns for the year 1910, which are especially important because of the comparisons possible with the population data of the three tenth census, may be in complete agreement for all of the states and cities of the United States.

Special circulars of instructions will be issued relative to the reporting of occupations and causes of death. It is hoped that the new standard certificates and the approved instructions may be adopted by all of the registration states and cities, so that thoroughly comparable returns may be instituted for the decade beginning January 1, 1910.

Dr. Wilson, who was one of the American delegates at the second decennial revision, stated Monday that the opportunity of starting out with the use of the revised classification for the mortality statistics relating to the actual census year, is of the great-

FEDERAL JUDGE

Deciding the Panama Libel Case

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Judge A. B. Anderson of the circuit announced at the close of the first day's argument in the so-called Panama libel case, in which the government sought to have Messrs. Williams and Smith of the In-moved to the Malden hospital after being given medical aid by Dr. P. F. Gates, who died there without recovering consciousness.

The man's family, consisting of his wife, a son, Lawrence Tierney, also a conductor employed on the Malden division of the elevated street railway, and his daughter, Catherine, remained with Mr. Tierney in the street until his removal to the hospital.

Mr. Tierney was a native of County Cavan, Ireland, and came to this country when 12 years old. Being in the Fields Corner district of Dorchester until a few years ago, he was employed by the elevated and the old West End street railway as a horse car driver and motorman. He ran a cabaret in Dorchester division for ten years until infantry came out, when he was compelled to give up the place. He was given a position two years ago as a waiter at the Main Street Crossing in Malden.

SEVENTY YEARS OLD

Rheumatism and pneumonia visited their path to Percy Dunn, Pauper of the day, so sparingly born, for seven years. Hayes.

The affair was held in Mattew hall and was well attended by members of the society and invited guests.

Then Patrick K. Phelan, O. M. L. and Jim E. L. Connell, O. M. L., both of Taunton, northeast, were the speakers of the evening. Fr. Phelan gave an interesting history on the great temperance advocate, Fr. Connell also spoke along the same lines.

his gun which he had left there, and a few items of supplies.

When asked why only a few supplies were taken from the cache, the boys replied that only a small amount of provisions had been used in the few days since they left the cache, and that their sledges still had all they could carry, so that they could not take more.

After being informed of the boys' narrative thus far, Commander Peary suggested a series of questions to be put to the boys in regard to this trip from the land out and back to it. These questions and answers were as follows:

Did they cross many open leads or much open water during this time? Ans. None.

Did they make any caches out on the ice? Ans. No.

Did they kill any bear or seal while out on the ice north of Cape Thomas Hubbard? Ans. No.

Did they kill or lose any of their dogs while out on the ice? Ans. No. With how many sledges did they start? Ans. Two.

How many dogs did they have. Ans. Did not remember exactly, but something over twenty.

How many sledges did they have when they got back to land? Ans. Two.

Did they have any provisions left on their sledges when they came back to land? Ans. Yes, the sledges still had about all they could carry, so they were able to take but a few things from the cache.

From here they went southwest along the northwest coast of Heilberg Land to point indicated on the map (Sverdrup's Cape Northwest).

From here they went west across the ice, which was level and covered with snow, offering good going to a low island which they had seen from the shore of Heilberg Land at Cape Northwest. On this island they camped for one sleep.

The size and position of this island, as drawn by the first boy, was criticized by the second boy as being too large and too far to the west, the second boy calling the attention of the first to the fact that the position of the island was more nearly in line with the point where they had left Heilberg Land (Cape Northwest) and the channel between Amund Ringnes Land and Heilberg Land.

This criticism and correction was accepted by the first boy, who started to change the position of the island, but was stopped as Commander Peary had given instructions that no changes or erasures were to be made in the notes as drawn by the Eskimos on the chart.

From this island they could see two lands beyond (Sverdrup's Blue Ringnes and Amund Ringnes Lands.) From the island they journeyed toward the left-hand one of these two lands (Amund Ringnes Land), passing a small island which they did not visit. Arriving at the shore of Amund Ringnes Land the Eskimos killed a deer as indicated on the chart.

The above portion of the statement of the Eskimo boys covers the period of time in which Dr. Cook claims to have gone to the pole and back, and the entire time during which

A LOWELL MAN

Claims Share of a
$113,000 Estate

Leon Beland left Louisville, Que., when he was 18 years old and he died in Newark, N. J., in March, 1908, leaving an estate valued at $113,000. He was a speculator and his money was in oil and railroad stock.

Philippe Lestue-Desaulniers, of Bowes street, this city, comes in for a share of Leon Beland's estate, for the latter was his uncle.

Mr. Desaulniers has already received his share of $25,000, which has been divided among 21 heirs, while a further sum, $35,000, now held till her death by another heir of the testator, is to revert to those same heirs and be divided among them when she dies.

Next Spring

The Company Awaits Franchises in Lawrence, Andover and Chelmsford—Sec. McKenna and Supt. Lees Confer on Matter

The prospects for the establishment of a system of trolley express in Lowell next spring look bright as the result of an investigation recently made by Sec. McKenna of the board of trade at the request of the directors of that organization. At the last meeting of the directors the secretary was instructed to get into communication with the railroad people relative to the matter, the franchise for this city having been voted some time ago. Secretary McKenna wrote to Mr. Goff who has charge of the railroad affairs during the absence of President Sullivan, who is in Europe. Mr. Goff sent

LATEST ABUSED HIS HORSE Man Fined $20 in Police Court Today

Milkman Charged With Watering His Milk — Reckless Husband Fails to Appreciate Leniency of the Court

"If the horse had been a man he would have turned around and kicked your brains out," said Judge Hadley to Abraham J. Vienna, who was charged with cruelly beating a horse. Abraham said that he was guilty but denied that he treated his horse as badly as Agent Richardson of the Lowell Humane society tested.

Judge Hadley was evidently disgusted with the defendant for the manner in which he had treated his horse and after imposing a fine of $20 made the remark quoted above.

Watered His Milk

Lycurgus Lamperis, who is a milk dealer, was in court charged with having added water to his milk in one complaint, while in the second complaint he was charged with having milk below the standard. He entered pleas of not guilty and asked for a continuance for one week and the continuance was granted.

FEDERATION OF LABOR

HOLYOKE, Oct. 13.—The annual election of officers was expected to be the principal business at today's session of the Massachusetts state branch of the American Federation of Labor which is holding its convention in this city. There were contests, for nearly every office, with the exception of the position of secretary-treasurer, for which D. C. Driscoll of Boston was not opposed. The aspirants for the presidency were Thomas J. Durkin of this city, the first vice president of the state branch, and Thomas Nolan of the Boston Typographical union.

Didn't Appreciate Leniency

M. J. Donohoe was arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with assault and battery on his wife. He entered a plea of guilty and acknowledged that he was sorry for what he did. The wife said that he was perfectly willing to suffer the injury if her husband would do better and it looked as though he would be discharged and "they would live happily ever afterward," but Donohoe started to explain and the attempt to explain proved his undoing.

Mrs. Donohoe spoke of the mental anguish and suffering which she had undergone, how hard she had worked about the house to make an inciting home for her husband and displayed her children who bore all the marks of tender care.

After telling the story of how her husband had pushed her, which resulted in the sprain of her ankle she said that she was willing to forgive him for everything that he had done if he would mend his ways.

"Don't you think you had better leave off your drink?" asked Judge Hadley.

"I never will," said Donohoe with an air of bravado.

At this point the court saw that the actions of Donohoe indicated that he might have been drinking during the morning.

"Have you been drinking today?" asked the court.

"No, I have not touched a drop."

The court again spoke to the defendant relative to leaving off drink, but Donohoe still insisted that he would not quit drinking, for he claimed that he would take a drink when and where he pleased and that he never indulged in the liquor to excess.

This remark caused the court to say: "If you expect any clemency from the court you have got to maintain a different attitude than you have since you stood here. I don't understand such a man as you."

Judge Hadley, evidently feeling miffed for the woman than the man, told Prohibition Office Shattery to take him in hand and see if there was any chance for a hasty reunion. Mr. Shattery took Donohoe into his office, but had been there but a short time when he told the court that he wanted the man placed in a cell, inasmuch as he was intoxicated. Judge Hadley ordered the man to be taken below and kept there.

Y. M. C. I. TAKES ON A BIG BOOM

Twenty-five applications for membership were received and 16 new members admitted at last night's meeting of the Y. M. C. I. President Whitten King in the chair. An interesting contest to secure new members is now on and the 25 members bringing in the largest number of new members from now until the close of the year will be given a banquet by the society.

Arrangements were made for the coming rowing tournament, and a date to be held next month. The Y. M. C. I. has organized its football team for the coming season and will open with G. C. on Saturday next.

It is expected that many of the old players will be in uniform again this year and the team should be one of the strongest in the state.

ST. PETER'S HOLY NAME

The regular monthly meetings of St. Peter's Holy Name society will be held Saturday evening in the church hall. New members will be admitted and new initiates admitted at each session. Miss Lucy has held a series of the monthly meetings for some time past. The literary committee is at present engaged in organizing a prominent speaker for the society's stroke talk in the near future.

Geraldine and Melva J. Each Gave a Surprise Party

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 13.—Stingy route the second trip and managed to last long enough to finish first. Geers pulled out a bit sooner in the third mile, and, saving the daughter of cutting hard drive, landed. The fourth trip was a bit easier, Geraldine having the battle won from the distance in, although Ella Ambulator tried hard to respond to Murphy's desperate drive.

Lady Stately was a 2 to 1 favorite in the slow trot in the early going, but before the race started the New England money sent the field to even figures. Walter Cox drove a waiting race, making his move in the last eighth, each heat. The first trip he had to give Melva J. a lot of help, but in the next two the game little mare was too much for the Lady.

Two horses started in this event, but only three remained in until the finish, catching the dog the first heat. Chester W. Lassell of Oakhurst Farm, Whitinsville, Mass., sold the trotting stallion Judge Lee, 208 1-4, to an Australian buyer yesterday forenoon, and the gray son of Lee Pilot will be shipped across the water next week.

DRIVER OF HORSE

WAS TAUGHT A LESSON BY A WOMAN

PORLTAND, Me., Oct. 12.—Yesterday morning a colored man was driving an old and very lame horse on Federal street. There was a heavy rain, the street was muddy, the lame too heavy for the feeble old animal and it stopped. The driver beat it violently but without any effect. The horse was worn out and could not draw the load.

A number of school children tried to reason with the man, but he continued to beat the horse. Then Mrs. Henrietta Williams stepped forward and said: "Lash the horse again and I'll give you a lesson for it."

The driver was taken completely by surprise, but did not strike the horse again.

"Take the horse from the cart and go home," said Mrs. Williams. The man insisted that he must take his load, but at last yielded and left the cart by the side of the street and led the horse off. He said to Mrs. Williams: "I did not realize how lame the horse was, but she told him that such a story could not be believed under the circumstances."

"I really did," said Mrs. Williams.

"That if he had struck the horse again I would have taken his whip from him and given him a good lashing. Any way I would have tried to."

CLEARING THE STREETS

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 13.—Hundreds of laborers today are clearing the streets of the debris resulting from the hurricane which practically destroyed half of this city Monday. It will be many days before normal business conditions may be resumed here.

Great rejoicing is felt over the reports from points near Key West, showing that the loss of life from the "big blow" has been the smallest recorded along the Florida coast. The property damage, however, is the heaviest of the history of the peninsula.

Toddy Mayer Fogarty issued an appeal for help from the people of the United States. At the Mallory dock a great quantity of merchandise was ruined.

The iron conveyors at the naval station broke loose from their moorings and plunged through their deck. One schooner was sunk and another was injured and may be a total loss.

MORSE'S FRIENDS QUARANTINE BOAT

Petition the President Is in the Bushes at Hog Key

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—A petition asking President Taft for clemency towards Charles W. Morse is being prepared for circulation among prominent business men and members of the east. Morse's attorneys are striving to have the United States supreme court grant him a new trial. An executive portion will be his own means of escape from the sentence of fifteen years of imprisonment recently pronounced by the federal circuit court of appeals.

Morse showed improvement today after his attack of illness in the Tampa hospital yesterday. His physician said that he was stronger than he imagined previously would recover in a short time.

According to the story told by spectators the Dunton boy jumped on the "blind" on the left side of the front vestibule of a car, about 8:15 o'clock this morning and failing to grasp a suitable support, lost his balance and fell under the wheels and had a foot crushed.

The ambulance was summoned and the boy was taken to the Lowell hospital where he received treatment.

BALLOON ASCENSION

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., Oct. 13.—Clinging to the bottom of their overturned fishing dory while it was swept by heavy seas, four men were rescued in the nick of time this morning by the life-savers from the Southeast End station this morning. The men saved were Horatio W. Allen, Marshall Ball, Roland Hickey and Frank Allen, all prominent fishermen of Block Island.

They went out in the dory this morning to draw their nets and in rounding Southeast End were capsized. The life-savers, under Captain William Teal, launched the surf boat and fought their way out to the overturned craft. Ball let go his hold just as the surf boat arrived and was hauled out of the water by a boat hook caught in his collar by one of the life-savers.

TUBERCULOSIS, PREVENTION AND CURE.

Consumption, tuberculosis or the "white plague" is the most fatal disease known to the human race in all civilized lands. The disease is also known as "phthisis" and is caused by a germ known as the bacillus of tuberculosis which has the power of multiplying very rapidly under favorable conditions. The germs, however, are dissipated by sunshine, fresh air and daylight as well as by strong disinfectants. Sunshine is the great foe of consumptive germs and kills them in a few hours.

Perhaps it is best before laying down a few simple rules of prevention to point out the ravages of this dread disease. Tuberculosis finds most of its victims in middle life, causing practically one-third of all the deaths that occur between the ages of twenty and fifty years. The mortality due to this disease in the United States alone in the course of a year reaches a total of nearly 200,000 lives. Tuberculosis causes one-third of the deaths between the ages of fifteen and forty-five and one-half the deaths between the ages of twenty and thirty-five.

During the four years of the Civil war the loss of life was estimated to be 205,000, but in four years at the present time in this country tuberculosis quietly causes the death of over 700,000 people. Imagine what a dreadful state of feeling would prevail if the nation were in the throes of civil war and if the mortality caused thereby were as great in proportion to our population as during the war of '61 to '64.

We have no civil war but the white plague is causing just three times as many deaths as would a civil war at the rate stated. Here then we get an idea of the terrible ravages of tuberculosis and of the necessity of combatting it by every means known to science. By some this disease is considered incurable, and it is in the advanced stages; but if taken in time it can certainly be cured by systematic treatment. In the columns of this paper a short time ago was told the story of the happy lot of people that was seen boarding the Vassar avenue car when leaving the tuberculosis camp of the Lowell General hospital. They were all quite discouraged and dejected on entering, but on leaving a few months afterwards they were as gay as a party of picnickers, all browned with the sun and with not a sign of the dread disease.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance company asserts that in 1907 no less than 18.29 per cent. of the males insured and 15.82 of the females died of tuberculosis, making a percentage for both sexes of 17.3. The same company further shows that from the first of January to the 31st of December, 1907, one of its policy-holders died every thirty-two minutes of this disease.

The bacillus of tuberculosis is invisible to the naked eye. Millions of such germs may be afloat in the air, thus obtaining access to the lungs by inhalation. If the person is robust he may be able to resist and cast off the colonies of germs that enter his lungs, but if weak and debilitated the germs will colonize in his lungs, multiplying with amazing rapidity, causing lumps which break and are ejected in the sputum. Here then is one of the gravest dangers of spreading the disease from the indiscriminate spitting of people affected with the disease. In due time the sputum is transformed into dust and the germs are blown about in the air. If the patient is not careful the air in his home will be charged with these noxious germs and everybody in the house or who may enter it temporarily is in danger. The germs may be drawn into the lungs on the streets, in the home or wherever they abound in the air. This shows the danger of spitting on the streets or sidewalks where large numbers of people are passing. It proves the need of enforcing the anti-spitting law which in most cases is ignored.

The symptoms of the disease are a cough lasting a month or longer, loss of weight, slight fever each afternoon, a tired feeling, and if the disease is well advanced bleeding from the lungs. As soon as these symptoms appear prompt action is necessary to check the disease. A physician's aid should be secured and the fresh air treatment started at once. Sunshine, fresh air and plenty of nourishing food, principally fresh eggs and milk, are the chief remedies. Some medicine should be taken at the same time to build up the affected lung tissue and strengthen the system so that it can cast off the germ growth that is working the destruction of the lungs. Dirt, dampness and darkness are the three great allies of the white plague and a fourth might be set down as lack of proper nourishment. On the contrary, sunshine, pure air and cleanliness with plenty of good nourishing food and rest are the greatest enemies of the disease.

The drink habit instead of warding off tuberculosis helps it. The great object either for prevention or cure is to increase the strength of the body so that it can resist the germs or cast them off if they have already established a colony in the system.

If the home treatment with the aid of a physician fails to effect a prompt improvement then the only hope lies in going to a sanitorium where the disease is specially treated and where everything is provided that is calculated to combat the progress of the disease and to build up the strength of the body. For this purpose there must be fresh air all the time, plenty of good food, rest and freedom from worry with all the benefit that can be derived from the beneficent effect of sunshine. None of the patent medicines of themselves will cure consumption while many of them are positively injurious as they derive their stimulating effect from alcohol.

With the exercise of due care to prevent tuberculosis and prompt measures to arrest its progress in the early stages, there is no reason why the great mortality resulting from its ravages should not be greatly reduced. But none of these things are possible with any large proportion of the people unless the manner of contracting the disease and the common sense treatment to check its progress be widely known. The masses must be educated in the prevention as well as the cure in order that the disease may be checked at the earliest possible moment after its presence is detected. For this purpose it is necessary that physicians report to the board of health all cases of tuberculosis in order that due precautions may be taken to guard against the spread of the disease through ignorance or carelessness.

SEEN AND HEARD

"When you go to bed at night sweep your mind clear of everything and go to sleep. Fancies, hopes, dreams—everything! let all go, and rest up for the day that is coming." This is good advice, but it's dollars to doughnuts that the one who gave it couldn't follow it. Think of throwing a late lobster or Welsh rarebit to the winds when you want to go to sleep!

Better to live in sackcloth and ashes than to sleep on a burning mattress.

While Peary is back where all things good to eat are available, he still longs to canned goods. He's afraid of the rock.

A cook in the kitchen is worth four at the pot, if you're hungry.

There must be days when we can't eat, and they're the saddest days of all.

It is reported that the fellow who told the story last Sunday of the landlady's serpent at Lake Muscopie has a second bite. Murphy's corn-beef and cabbage dinner.

Quite recently a shipwreck of the Arctic squadron forced it necessary to call for a few hours at a military post on the coast of Ireland. "Tommy Atkins, meeting a full-bearded Irish tar in the street a couple of hours later said, "Fat, where are you going to sleep?" "I'm going to the reserve lists." "What you place your tongue on the civil list?" was the Irish sailor's reply.

This story was told by a man who was not an advocate of the use of tobacco and who never used it himself. It is perhaps not as bad as it would be if the story teller was himself a slave to the weed. He believed, however, that he was acquainted with the most inveterate smokers of any day, and he gave this title to a colored woman. One day, an author of a number of anti-tobacco tracts, went to make a friendly call on the colored woman. She was then about 99 years old, but her color had faded to a chimney corner quietly smoking her ancient and notorious pipe. The tract writer protested:

"Aunty," he said, "I truly admire you, but there is one thing that I deplore."

The old woman desired to know what that was.

"It's your smoking," was the reply.

The old woman laughed.

"You may smile," the guest said, "but your smoke will keep you forever out of heaven."

The aged "aunty" at once became interested.

"Lawsakes, honey, how's dat?" she asked.

"Because, aunty," the man replied, "you know that we are told 'nothing entereth that defileth.' Now, how would it be possible for you to get into heaven with a breath that was defiled by tobacco?"

The old colored woman smiled and then she replied, slowly: "Lawsakes, honey, when Ah goes to heaven Ah expects to leave main brea h behin' me."

Strange as it may appear, I got up early this morning—between 4:30 and 6 o'clock—and after dressing thought I would take a little walk before breakfast. Imagine my surprise, while walking down the street near the house, to see Andrew Pendleton with his friends, Walter Coburn and Sam Harvery, trudging down the street, each carrying a basket in his hand.

"Where are you going so early this morning?" was asked.

"Just taking a little walk," was the answer.

"What are you carrying the baskets for?"

"Well, we're not going to pick flowers."

"Didn't suppose you were at this time of the year."

The truth of the matter is that the two was out looking for mushrooms, having heard of a place in that vicinity where the mushrooms are plenty. They must have expected a great haul when they carried three baskets. We are truly informed that all they found weighed about a pound and a half. Although out early they were late.

LOVE'S STORY

Love is not told in an hour
At the close of a summer's day;

Time hath no bonds nor power,

Love taketh his way;

Heedless of sunlight or shower,

Passion or play.

Love is not told in a day,

Brief though the words may be;

Love that have clung fall away,

Night cometh to those

Earth that thou survivest to say

Come, love to me.

Love is not told in the years—

Words that are sought

Meat but a measure of fears

Never to be brought;

When thou art kissed, love, to tears

All words are naught.

Love in life is not told.

Yet thou dost give it to me;

Noticing the lips withhold,

Yet I must tell it to thee,

Tell it, tell God unfold

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

"Wanted by the Police" which is the current attraction at the Opera House is proving one of the best liked of the popular priced offerings seen at the Opera House this season and last night's show was seen by a good sized audience that warmly applauded the many thrilling melodramatic situations of this play. Harold Vosburgh in the role of "Billy West," the fastest telegraph operator in the world, was seen to excellent advantage while the other members of the company gave adequate support. The scene's investiture of "Wanted by the Police" is excellent and more pretensions than usually seen with popular priced attractions. The final performance of this play here will be given tonight.

THE CHORUS LADY.

Following a number of long runs in the principal cities, after an entire year in New York City and three months in London, Miss Rose Stahl will be seen at the Opera House, Thursday, Oct. 14, in James Forbes' delightful comedy, "The Chorus Lady." Miss Stahl's appearance in this play was one of the most remarkable features of New York theatricals three seasons ago, where, practically unknown, with a play from the pen of Fred Twins in Graeco-Roman wrestling, a remarkably clean cut act; the parts Brothers—also twins—in the hilarious sketch "Double Troubles;" Folk & Folk, springboard acrobats; Alice, Jorge & Hamilton, polite vaudeville entertainers; Billy Coleman, pianist; Gilligan & Murray, in a flat-top act; and the Hattoscope.

Performances will be given every afternoon and evening during the remainder of the week, with special seats at the matinees for women.

STAR THEATRE

"Much for little." This term is readily applied in reference to the show at the Star Theatre. Mile Tesser, Lowell's celebrated blind singer, and Baba Curry, the popular popular singer in a style truly her own, are permanently engaged at the theatre. The map their route, members of our party writing upon the chart where, according to the boy's statement, they had killed deer, bear, some of their dogs seal, walrus and musk-oxen.

The second boy was then called in and the two went over the chart together, the second boy suggesting some changes as noted hereafter.

Finally, Panikpah, the father, was again called in to verify details of the portions of the route with which he was personally familiar.

The bulk of the boy's testimony was not taken by Commander Peary, nor in his presence, a fact that obviates any possible claim that they were awed by him.

Certain questions on independent lines from the direct narrative of the Eskimo boys were suggested by Commander Peary to some of us, and were put by us to the Eskimo boys.

Still later, Commander Peary asked the Eskimo boys two or three casual questions on minor points that had occurred to him.

During the taking of this testimony, it devolved that Dr. Cook had told these boys as he told Mr. Whitney and Billie Pritchard, the cabin boy, that they must not tell Commander Peary, or any of us, anything about their journey, and the boys stated Dr. Cook had threatened them if they should tell anything.

The narratives of these Eskimos is as follows:

They, with Dr. Francke and nine other Eskimos, left Anorok, in August, to verify details of the portions of the route with which he was personally familiar.

The bulk of the boy's testimony was not taken by Commander Peary, nor in his presence, a fact that obviates any possible claim that they were awed by him.

Dr. Cook, with the others, then proceeded up Flager bay, a branch of Buchanan bay, and crossed Smith's Sound to Cape Sabine, slept in Commander Peary's old house in a general way, where Dr. Cook had been; that he had wintered in Jones Sound and that he had told the white men at Etah that he had been a long way north, but that the boys who were with him, I-took-a-shoo and Ah-pe-lah, said that this was not so. The Eskimos laughed at Dr. Cook's story. On reaching Etah, I talked with the Eskimos there and with the two boys and asked them to describe Dr. Cook's journey to members of my party and myself. This they did in the manner stated below.

Signed Statement of Peary, Bartlett, McMillan, Bonapart and Hanson, in regard to Testimony of Cook's Two Eskimo Boys.

The two Eskimo boys, I-took-a-shoo and Ah-pe-lah, who accompanied Dr. Cook while he was away from Anorok in 1908 and 1909, were questioned separately and independently, and were corroborated by Panikpah, the father of one of the (I-took-a-shoo), who was personally familiar with the first and the last third of their journey, and who said that the route for the remaining third, as shown by them, was described to him by his son after his return with Dr. Cook.

Notes of their statements were taken by several of us, and no one of us has any doubt that they told the truth. Their testimony was unshaken by cross-examination, was corroborated by other men in the tribe, and was elicited neither by threats nor promises. The two boys and their father talking of their journeys and their experiences in the same way that they would talk of any hunting trip.

To go more into details: One of the boys was called in, and with a chart where the table before him was angled to show where he had gone with Dr. Cook. This he did, pointing out with his finger on the map, but not marking any points upon it.

As he went out, the other boy came in and was asked to show where he had gone with Dr. Cook. This he did, and indicated the same route and the same details as did the first

Why Jack Johnson Should Defeat Stanley Ketchel

By TOMMY CLARK.

The eyes of the followers of pugilism are now focused on the coming bout for the world's heavyweight championship between Jack Johnson, the title holder, and Stanley Ketchel, who is now rejoicing under the sobriquet of the "Michigan Hurricane," to be held in San Francisco Oct. 12. With both men in the best physical shape possible the bout should result in a contest worth going miles to see. In many sections Ketchel is picked as the man to restore the title to the white race, thereby relieving Jim Jeffries of the trouble of coming back into the ring to fight the colored man. Then again, in other quarters the opinion is that Ketchel is too small for Johnson and the latter will experience little difficulty in stowing away the Michigan boy. Anyway, the question will be definitely answered when the pair clash.

Before his fight with Papke there were many who gave Ketchel a mighty good chance of beating Johnson. They figured him a good ring general and a man with so remarkable a punch that Johnson would not be able to stand against him. Those same fight fans, however, when they looked at Papke and Ketchel, shook their heads when it was suggested to them that Ketchel would stand a good chance against the negro.

Even admitting that he injured his hands, he would as likely hurt those same hands against Johnson. Stanley didn't have the punch to stow away Battling Nelson recently, let alone Billy Papke or Johnson. The exercise of moving around the ring in the first three rounds, before Papke had marked him, tired the Michigan boy, so that it must either be admitted that he was woefully out of condition or gone back in the boxing game.

When one sizes up the dope on the Ketchel-Papke and the Johnson-Kaufman battles, the two last contests the men engaged in, one finds that the negro will on form have an easy time of it. Although in his bout with Papke Ketchel was a ten to six favorite, it was figured by dopesters that the "Michigan Hurricane" would dispose of the "Illinois Thunderbolt" in big time. But the result was just the opposite, and perhaps if the latter had been a little more aggressive the decision would have been given to him. Ketchel gave as an excuse for his poor showing that he injured his hand in the early part of the contest. While such was the case, the Michigan boy had ample time to dispose of Papke, as he did not injure his master until the seventh round.

On the other hand, Johnson's showing in his ten round battle with Kaufman was a revelation to the fight fans. The big colored man just toyed with the California Hercules throughout the contest. Had he fought with the tiger-fish frenzy that used to mark the efforts of such black demons as Joe Walcott perhaps he would have put his man out in about two or three rounds.

To go back further and look over Johnson's six round battle with "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien and the latter's two contests with Ketchel one would think that the Michigan boy would have a splendid chance of knocking out the negro. No stock should be taken in Johnson's fight with O'Brien, for the negro only fooled with the Quaker City man. Had he tried hard O'Brien would not have lasted long now, and in the second go he also more than three rounds. Ketchel's administered the sleep producer in the fight fans. In the first Johnson has every advantage over Ketchel in the coming scrap—height, weight, and skill. Ketchel is a bit surprised at the fight looks an absolute gift for Johnson. He is too big a man for Ketchel, has too many pounds to the advantage of his opponent and too considered possible winners. Bob Fitzsimmons did this, it is true, but that one exception proved the rule. In the days of John L. Sullivan, James J. Corbett and even to the later period of James J. Jeffries there was no talk of matching middleweights against heavyweights. While Fitzsimmons was a middleweight by weight, he was so remarkable a man in many ways and had proved his worth so thoroughly that there was no questioning his right.

In the lighter classes, such as Joe Walcott among the welters and Joe Gans among the lightweights, there are instances of men going out of their classes and sustaining their reputations. It is more difficult, however, among the heavier fighters.

Ketchel has accomplished little of the Fitzsimmons sort. He looks to be a genuine middleweight and gives no signs of putting on weight much above the 170 pound mark. He is middleweight champion beyond a doubt, but Papke casts a shadow on the title in their last go, not so much because of his superior work as because Ketchel failed miserably.

To come down to the facts, Ketchel's chances of victory against the colored man are very slim. Johnson may not be good enough to defeat Jim Jeffries when the time comes, but he was good enough to play with Ketchel, and his showing was such as to make him a cinch almost with Ketchel.

In the first place, Ketchel is far too small and far too eager a fighter to ever hope to make a stand against the towering black. Unless he develops a new style he will never get within striking distance of Johnson, and in the event that he starts one of his wild shifts and misses his dozen or so blows and there, for Johnson has shown that he seldom overlooks an opportunity.

While Ketchel's chances appear very slim, however, one has to admit that the Michigan boy will probably make a better showing against the colored man than did Kaufman. Ketchel is a far more aggressive fighter than the big, lumbering Californian, and he is more willing to take chances.

Ketchel's one great chance to land defeat on Johnson would be to land a few hard swings on the negro's body. This is the sort of punch to make the colored man slow down and the one to turn the trick, but Johnson guards himself so well and boxes so cleverly that it would be a difficult task to hit him down below. If Ketchel can penetrate the negro's wonderful defense in the first few rounds and land a few telling smashes he will weaken the negro and be able to land a sleep producer. In his fight with Kaufman Johnson showed that his body is his most vulnerable point, and it will probably be Ketchel's main object of attack.

There are any number of fight followers who believe that Johnson has a streak of yellow and that if properly pummeled about the body he will quit. That is one reason why Ketchel will have some followers when he stands up against the black. The other reason that the match will attract attention is because of the very audacity of the Michigan fighter, who fears no one and quite evidently thinks he will be the winner.

To the writer the fight looks an absolute gift for Johnson. He is too big a man for Ketchel, has too many pounds to the advantage of his opponent and too much strength to hold him off. He is far more clever than the middleweight champion, whose rushing style of fighting ought to suit Johnson to a dot.

It is quite true that Johnson fights in sports, but Ketchel can be calculated upon to make Jack fight all the time. It may not be a contest that will last for any length of time, but it will surely have plenty of action while it goes along.

Of Ketchel it can be truthfully said that he knows no fear. He is game to the core, for this gameness is what pulled him through against Billy Papke when last they met.

Ketchel has asked his chance, and now it is to have it.

Baseball Gambling Again.

That gambling specter which has for so long haunted the imaginations of the baseball magnates has at last succeeded in getting a tmo at bat. The first up, Mr. Specter rapped the nervous magnates for a safe one, and from his start it appears that he may have a promising future in the big leagues.

This plague on all good sports has put the Boston National League club on the defensive, and the net result of his re-entry into baseball is that the chief police of Boston has declined to endorse the application of the National League club for a renewal of its license to play games on the Boston grounds.

Reason-gambling is permitted on the premises. To support his statement that the aforementioned spectre is on the job the chief states that not only have his men seen it, but have even arrested some of its followers.

The attitude of the chief leaves the Boston National League club very much in the air, and it does not yet know what it is going to do about playing off its home games.

There seems to be considerable mystery about the matter. Now, if the facts had occurred at the Boston

American park one could understand. But "why should anybody want to bet on the National League club?"

Imagine any one risking a heavy fine by rushing to get a bet down on the Boston team!

Ugh! I forgot that sore lip again.

The Boston chief seems to lose sight of the fact that the gambling is in spite of baseball club owners, not because of them. Where ten men bet at a baseball game 10,000 never think of it. It's a mighty hard hearted chief that would stop the sport of 10,000 because he couldn't arrest the ten.

Where the Trouble Lies.

The menace of baseball gambling does not lie in the picayunish speculations of grand stand occupants or spectators. These are too slight to be considered. The real trouble is to come from outside the parks, if anywhere. The handbooks of many cities carry a considerable daily bank roll devoted to baseball. Some day this may become so ponderous as to swing a baleful influence over some not too moral umpire or over a wrench of a pitcher. That attempt to bribe the umpire at New York last year is proof enough that this is no mere bugbear. Whenever some pitcher or umpire becomes too well acquainted with the man handling thousands it is not impossible that something could be, after the manner of Jack O'Brien's fights, arranged."

Baseball has so many safeguards thrown about it that the chance of any such condition prevailing is slight. There have been times in the history of the game when such things were done, but not for a long time now.

In the meantime poor Boston doesn't know whether it will have a home or not when it gets back from the present tour.

Poor Outlook For Racing In California.

A prominent western bookmaker and part track owner recently announced that there would be racing at Los Angeles and San Francisco the coming winter. For one who is an expert at games of chance—so called because the public has little—this bookmaker is acutely credulous, or perhaps it's only the old case of the wish fathering the thought.

This bookmaker's viewpoint originates in the belief, he says, that if oral betting is a success in New York it will be in California. But it may be well to remember that oral betting is a sort of side door to the big and in California they have locked the portal in question and thrown away the key.

Racing is a game for the rich, and the advent of men who make a living at it takes from it the right to be considered a true sport. When the poor owner who depended on his three or four "skates" for his hay, horses, feed and his own bread and butter came into existence the beginning of the end of racing started. It is self evident that poor owners and cheap horses could not compete aboveboard against rich men who maintained splendid stables for love of horses and of the game. Right there the serpent entered the racing Eden. Since that time it has been a game of matching wits and "arranging" conditions so that bets could be won if purses could not.

polio Bill fell down, and Hughey bounced him in a hurry. Last year "Germany" Schaefer was the field captain of the Tigers and the most valuable man on the team, barring Cobb and Crawford. This year he got a poor start, and Jennings fired him before you could say "Jack Johnson." Claude Rossman helped win two championships for Jennings. He stumbled with the stick this year, and Jennings dumped him overboard in a jiffy.

John McGraw is another good fellow, but I notice that he can slip a ten day notice to a fading star quicker than any man in the game. John makes no distinction between friend and foe. Dan McGann, George Browne, Frank Bowerman, Sandow Mertes and Sammy Strang helped win a world's championship for McGraw in 1905. Two years later McGraw got rid of the whole bunch.

"There's nothing in this gratitude gag on the ball field. Every boy must stand up and fight for himself. The manager that stands by his friends, especially the ones who are showing up, will find himself out of a job."

WHEN SHAW WAS A CRITIC.

Clyde Fitch took down one of his famous scrap books shortly before his death.

"Before fane came to him," he said, "that great rival of mine, George Bernard Shaw, wrote theatrical criticisms for the London Saturday Review.

"Now, those were criticisms indeed. Nobody could praise a good play so beautifully as this critic. Nobody could roast a bad play so tellingly.

Listen. Here is a sample:

"I am in a somewhat foolish position concerning a play at the Opera Comique, whether I was bidding this day week. For some reason I was not supplied with a program, so that I never learned the name of the play. At the end of the second act the play had advanced about as far as an ordinary dramatist would have brought it five minutes after the first rising of the curtain—or, say, as far as Iben would have brought it ten years before that event. Taking advantage of the second interval to stroll out into the Strand for a little exercise I unfortunately forgot all about my business and actually reached home before it occurred to me that I had not seen the end of the play. Under these circumstances it would do me no good to dignify on the merits of the work or its performance. I can only offer the management my apologies."

What if it had been one of Fitch's plays? Would he have saved the clipping?

Some Features of New Musical Season

The Damrosch, Blauvelt and Other Tours

ALLE indications point to an American musical season of unusual interest. The announcements of the plans of well known vocalists as well as instrumentalists and of their managers are now coming forth. They emphatically demonstrate that the season now opening will attain the highest of standards.

Walter Damrosch, the director of the New York Symphony orchestra, will celebrate his twenty-fifth anniversary as conductor of that organization by making a commemorative tour of the principal cities of the east and middle west. This tour will take place in January, and the entire orchestra of a hundred men will travel in its own special train, composed of sleeping, dining, observation and baggage cars.

Reception committees are now being formed in each of the cities which Mr. Damrosch will visit. Banquets and receptions are to be tendered him at each point. As this is the first time the entire orchestra has ever left New York for a tour of this magnitude great interest has been aroused all over the country, and the coming of the organization is awaited with great interest.

In the spring of the year Mr. Damrosch will make his annual festival tour, and this season he will visit the Pacific coast. This tour will last for almost three months, starting in April and returning in June, and every big festival in this country will endeavor to have Mr. Damrosch and his orchestra as its principal attraction.

Mme. Blauvelt's Tour.

After spending a number of years abroad, singing in opera in Italy, Germany and Russia, Mme. Lillian Blauvelt, the celebrated American prima donna, has decided to spend the coming season in her native country. This news will be of great interest to musicians throughout America, for Mme. Blauvelt has not sung in Europe for some time.

It will be remembered that previous to her departure for Europe Mme. Blauvelt entered the high class comic opera field, the same time as Mme. Schumann-Heink made her venture in that direction. Mme. Blauvelt's success was so great that she determined to follow the more serious study of her art in grand opera in Europe and was equally fortunate in making a great success there.

She had already signed a contract for the coming season with the Imperial Opera at St. Petersburg, Russia, where she was to open her season in January. But the announcement that she would sing in concert here until December created such a demand for tickets that such a show was possible chosen instrument, but she is also gifted with great personal beauty. FR. MATHEW'S DAY

With Entertainment and Address by Rev. Denis F. Murphy at Mathews Hall Last Evening

The members of the Mathew Temperance Institute, and their guests last evening observed the 119th anniversary of the birth of Rev. Theobald Mathew, the great apostle of total abstinence. The affair took the form of an entertainment and an address on the life of Fr. Mathew by Rev. Denis F. Murphy of St. Michael's church, and was held in Mathews hall in Dutton street.

The opening number was a selection by Arthur Martell, and he was followed by a short talk by President James J. Gallagher. There were remarks by the spiritual director, Rev. W. George Mullin, and following this was a song by Miss Edna Knowlton.

Wm. F. Thornton recited with fine effect Bryan's celebrated speech, "The Crown and Cross of Gold." He made a distinct hit.

Rev. Fr. Murphy was then introduced.

A moving picture was next displayed, the subject being "The Brantford Reformation." A song by Mr. John J. Dalton was so well received that an encore was demanded. The mayor was present and spoke briefly.

officer of the local police court, and for many years past an active member of the institute, was next called upon and he talked at some length in a reminiscent vein on the work of the organization.

Mr. James B. Coughlin entertained in readings, and he was followed in songs by Mr. James J. Donnelly and Mr. Peter A. Clune. The closing number was a moving picture. It was nearly midnight when the pleasant atmosphere was at an end.

Fr. Murphy's Address

Fr. Murphy's address was as follows:

In Parsonstown, in the year 1849, there was great enthusiasm. An excited, surging gathering without control by the police, gleaming bayonets and moving cavalry. It was eager, restive, at any seducing mass or invitation to see and to applaud. Its hero, looking upon it through the pages of history I become one with it. At least I wish to see and study him, who has raised and made his own the afflictions of his people. He is within a man of little more than medium height, of thin and simple mien; he wears his victory well-of iron will in a victory base, indomitable purpose, clothed in gracefulness, of voice low and sweet; his beauty rather of soul than of feature; a man who draws one to him by the mighty power of simple earnestness; sinlessness of aim and boundless charity, rather than by the force of giant will or brilliant intellect.

Such is the Rev. Theobald Mathew, the Cappuchin friar, the apostle of temperance, the inspiration of your society.

He is but the child of his kindred, by nature kind and thoughtful of others; the fields of Thurnhamstown in quiet paths, or the woods about full of life and song, or the fellows of school days, could testify to his generous impulses and his thoughtful regard for equals and inferiors. You, not I, were the keynote to his life. Under his influence the man beamed with joy.

The priest raised up the fallen and educated the poor, to habits of industry, while the priestly paroch put the seal of eternal shame on drunkenness, and without entering into it, became a potent factor in the political agitation of the day. A man of tenderest type, there was no phase of human emotion which he did not feel; joy and sorrow, insult and kindness. He felt the happiness of the one and the sting of the other, but never to the point of retaliation. His heart was real, genuine; it went out to the man. In the purity it appealed to the sacred associations of hearth and church; in the garret, the hovel, in the workshop and the hospital, his charity found practical expression. Absorbed in his work as a priest, loved by the poor, esteemed by the rich, respected by the non-Catholics apart from the political agitation for the singular purity of his life and his undeviating devotion to duty in Kilkenny and Cork, it is not surprising that after 25 years he should be called upon to lead the greatest moral reform of the 19th century.

As one of the governors of the House of Industry, in Cork, he had learned to properly estimate the depth of woe into which human nature could fall through the excessive use of intoxicating drinks. This habit which many indulged became vicious. The question and happiness of the moment gave birth to the misery of years. To use his own words, "I have seen the stars of heaven fall and the cedar of Lebanon laid low." He had realized it all, and never more truly than after the prayerful consideration which he had given to the appeal of the tragedian William Martin to take up the cause of total abstinence. His decision was not made on impulse. He thought of his family interests, the opposition of those engaged in business, the criticism of friends dear to him, the habits and customs of the people, the weakness of human nature to persevere—the awful shame of falling. Now 47 years of age, could he bear the responsibility, could he stand the thoughts of body and mind? There in the dim room of his rectory, vanity did not suggest the blaze of the trumpet, nor the blaze of light over the shoulders of the multitude. It spoke only of simple human work and possible failure, but his boundless charity answered yes for the salvation of even one human soul in the name of God, if it go.

Emphatically first for the work, the reason of his sacrifice and motives, the place which he held strong and despite the afflictions of the world, we witness the need for such a man at this time. Some may have said, "What good is one man?" but you know very well indeed of his single soul which sought to turn men away from the path of total abstinence, and his boundless charity answered yes for the salvation of even one human soul.

Inside Clothing Secrets

Clothing is higher—I suppose you know that—from $2.50 to $3.00 a suit, and the object of this advertisement is to show you how the MERRIMACK is in a position this week to offer you a line of Men's High Grade Suits, cut and tailored with the latest kinks of fashion, at a saving of from $4.00 to $6.00 a suit, and this in the face of the advance of which we speak in the price of clothing at the present time.

Now, how do we do it? This is the end of the manufacturers' season and the beginning of the retail season; and all good business tailors in New York, before beginning the spring run, dispose of lots that are cancelled or which they decline to deliver on account of poor credit. The custom with these New York tailors is to invite a few stores in the city and one or two outside the city to help themselves to these plums at a reduction of from $4.00 to $6.00 a suit.

Now these plums are confined to a few stores with a large outlet, and they take all these cancellations and are glad to get them. They usually reserve them for the tail end of the season, when the retail trade needs a tonic. There is no mistake about the character of the bargains, and there is no skill required in selling the goods—the prices do that.

THE MERRIMACK is one of the stores which is given the privilege of taking their quota of these plums. We were allotted 150 suits only. We would take more if we could get them. But 150 suits means 150 customers for whom we can make a saving of from $4.00 to $6.00 a suit.

Now, if you are interested, at 9 o'clock on Friday morning next, these suits will be put on sale. On Thursday they will be on exhibition in the windows. The price will not appear upon them Thursday; that will be put on Friday morning and will make mighty interesting reading for the Lowell public.

CENSUS DIRECTOR

Has Issued New Orders to His Subordinates

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—U.S. Census Director Dr. Frank Durand, permanent transcribers are preferred because of the skill required. Local registrars should be compelled to make returns on time. No effective registration can exist when the central office permits lateness. The census of the state service must suffer, the other state offices, from the loss and in-competence which the competition paid for the returns is sufficient to entitle the government to thoroughly reliable transcripts, promptly transmitted, and containing all of the statistical data required to be registered under the state law.

This action is expected to result in the presentation of the most scientific and trustworthy mortality statistics ever compiled in connection with a decennial U.S. census, which affords the population base for the 1910 death rates. In addition to this important step toward more reliable data, the new revised version of the classification of the causes of death, as adopted at the Paris conference for the second decennial revision of the international classification, will go into effect January 1st next in the census registration area. Supplementing these will be the use of the new United States standard death certificates which it is believed the organized registration officials forming the vital statistics section of the American Public Health Association will adopt for the report of deaths commencing January 1st next, at the Glenwood, Va., meeting, October 20th-22nd next.

In his communication to the state registrars, Director Durand states that in their work of compilation it is of the greatest importance that there should be exact agreement between the number of deaths as compiled by the state officers and by the census bureau, at least with respect to the total number of deaths reported for each month in each state, county and city. Differences occur at present which are not creditable to American statisticians. For the purpose of preventing such differences, a monthly shipment of a list showing the deaths by months and areas has been prepared and will be supplied to each state registrar. He asks transcribers to follow absolutely the instructions for copying and est value. It is highly gratifying, he said, that the wishes of the United States for the advancement of the date of the next proposed revision from 1910 to 1909 was accorded to by the French government and the other countries participating.

In accordance with a resolution of the inter-national commission an official version of the revised tables is to be prepared to be furnished to the English translation has been made by Dr. Wilson, aided by the other American delegates and by Hon. G. W. Knibb, Commonwealth statistician of Australia. This will provide precisely the same tabular list for all English-speaking countries that have adopted the international classification.

The chief interest of the United States in the promotion of international statistics is accorded a very grateful attention in the bestowing of the classification of the international commission, said Dr. Wilson, who was elected to preside over one of the sections.

The next session will be called in this autumn under the auspices of the French government, unless other provision is made. Dr. Wilson said that it is to be expected, in view of the great advancement of American vital statistics and the important part this country has played in the extension of the international classification, that the final stage of revision will be called by the American government to meet in Washington.

To the city registrars the director suggests they note the instructions to the state registrars. He states that a city registrar should have in his hands the certificate of cause of death that occurs, with absolutely no exception, before any operation is made on the body; hence there should be no occasion for certifying died many days after the close of each month or year. The corrections should be obtained before the burial or removal permit is issued. No imperfect certificates or unsatisfactory statements of cause of death should be accepted. When overlooked, however, they may be corrected readily by special blank or telephone, and city registrars should therefore be superior in quality and completeness.

In conclusion the director states that with the cordial co-operation of state and city registration officials the value of the mortality statistics of the United States will be greatly improved. It is especially requested that every effort be made to carry out faithfully the recommendations for the remaining months of the present year so that the entire returns for the year 1910, which are especially important because of the comparisons possible with the population data of the thirteenth census, may be in complete agreement for all of the states and cities of the United States. Special circulars of instructions will be issued relative to the reporting of occupations and causes of death. It is hoped that the new standard certificate, and the approved instructions, may be adopted by all of the non-reporting states and cities so that the highly comparable returns may be instituted from the beginning January 1, 1910.

Dr. Wilson, who was one of the American delegates at the second decennial revision, stated Monday, that the opportunity of clearing out with the use of the revised classification for the mortality statistics relating to the actual census year, is of the greatest importance.

The affair was held in Mathew Hall and was well attended by members of the society and invited guests.

Rev. Patrick Phelan, O. M. L. and Rev. H. J. Connell, O. M. L., both of Pawtucket, were the speakers.

An interesting history on the great temperance advocate, Fr. Phelan gave an interesting history on the great temperance advocate, Fr. Connell also spoke along the same lines.
